County-Wide Reappraisal Ordered

State Demands Real Property Tax Overhaul

Points Out Burden Here Unfair For Many Taxpayers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Scores of Circleville home owners who built their residences in recent years are living in them without paying real estate taxes, the state board of tax appeals revealed today.

This is because the Pickaway County auditor, Fred L. Tipton, has not placed the homes on the tax duplicate, said Edward J. Kirwin, board chairman. The board today ordered the auditor to immediately make a reappraisal of all real property in the county, so that "all real property in Pickaway County be valued for tax purposes by an equal and uniform rule."

Kirwin said the tax board's investigation showed that in 1953 alone $750,000 in building permits was issued in Circleville. He said the tax duplicate shows only $40,000 of that amount being assessed for taxes.

Kirwin said the auditor claims he does not have enough help and that he has trouble getting the building permits from the city.

EARLY THIS month two tax board examiners visited Circleville taking pictures of houses and buildings they could not find on the tax duplicate. The examiners found 36 buildings not on the duplicate, and Kirwin said "that was just a shot in the dark."

Whether the same situation can be found in the county outside Circleville was not known. Kirwin said persons do not have to get building permits to build in rural areas, and the auditor told him he never received notice from persons building in the county.

The auditor has been in office since 1949.

Kirwin said the investigation began after the tax board received

Martha Raye Marries Her 5th Husband

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Movie and television star Martha Raye married her fifth husband yesterday after a hectic search through two states, in four chartered airplanes, for a quick marriage license.

Wearing a light blue garter which she displayed for skeptics, the wide-mouthed comedienne married Edward Thomas Begley, a dancer on her television show.

I was the first marriage for Begley, who is 30. Miss Raye gave her age as 37 but later quipped to newsmen, "Confidentially, I'm 57."

The ceremony was performed in the courthouse at Arlington, across the Potomac River from Washington, by Dr. Arthur L. Maiden, counselor of the juvenile bureau and a retired minister. The attendants were Carl Eastman of Westport, Conn., a talent scout, and his wife.

That was the climax of a chase which began early yesterday when Miss Raye and her party chartered two small planes to take them to Elkton, Md., once famous for quick marriages. They sent the planes on their way, planning to proceed by auto.

Finding that Maryland now has a 8-hour waiting period for marriage licenses, they located two more planes to take them to Alexandria, Va., a few miles from here.

Then they came on to Arlington, got a license and went through a double ring ceremony in which she and Begley pledged to be "true and loyal." Then the couple left for a Connecticut honeymoon.

Earlier, Miss Raye had been overheard to say, "This time it's for good." Her previous husbands were Nick Condos, her manager; Hamilton Westmore, makeup artist; David Rose, composer; and Neal Lang, hotel manager.

Strike End Seen

WAVERLY (AP)—Paul R. Flavin, union business agent, said today laborers who staged a wildcat strike at the atomic energy plant here seven days ago will be back on the job tomorrow.

AS SENATOR JOSEPH McCARTHY and the Army neared a showdown in their controversy, these two men stepped into the spotlight. McCarthy has alleged that the Army is trying to block disclosure of "misconduct and possible law violation" by H. Struve Hensel (left), assistant defense secretary. Hensel denounced McCarthy's charges as "barefaced lies" and challenged him to repeat them without senatorial immunity. McCarthy also nominated Republican Senator Henry Dworshak of Idaho (right) to replace him on the group during probe.

Merriman's Blast Claims Officers Can't Make Living On Their Pay

Police Chief Elmer Merriman said Thursday that the big reason for the annual Policemen's Ball, se here for April 30, is because "the men in my department aren't paid enough to meet the cost of living."

He emphasized the police officers are depending on the help of the public, in patronizing the dance, "since the public understands our problem but so far hasn't been able to do anything about it." The benefit ball will be held at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Merriman said:

"We can't get enough to meet the cost of living through regular salaries, so we have to lean heavily on what we make at the ball. All of Circleville and the surrounding areas know how my men have been ignored in their requests for a pay raise.

"AND ALMOST everybody by now knows how the city's support for the police department consists of buying two badges for each officer—nothing more in the way of uniforms or equipment. Yet, police officers are required to make a neat appearance in public — not only under regulations but because a lot of visitors and tourists judge a town by the appearance of the policemen they see.

"It would be a good idea, with the vacation season coming around again, Circleville residents would look and ask around the other communities they visit during the Summer, to size up the policemen and find out what the communities do for their officers.

"Then ask about their salary scale. And compare it to what my men get here in Circleville."

Merriman said he wanted to make it clear his criticism was not aimed "at the general public—the folks who live in Circleville but don't have a way to help us get a pay raise." They, he added, are the ones who will come to the ball next week "and we hope they all enjoy themselves."

His criticism, the chief said, was aimed at "those few officials who have yet to realize what the police department means to a community, and what we've been trying to do in our own department to make Circleville a better and safer place for all of us."

Tribute Paid Late Judge Ed Matthias

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio's Supreme Court today paid tribute to the late Judge Edward Matthias.

Known as the dean of Ohio jurists, Judge Matthias served on the high court for 39 years before his death Nov. 2. He spent 58 of 80 years as lawyer and judge.

The seven-member court paused in its proceedings to hear Charles R. Barefoot of Cleveland deliver the tribute. Barefoot headed a committee designated to prepare the memorial.

Other committee members were Stephen S. Beard of Van Wert, Edgar L. Weinland of Westerville and Hugh K. Martin and J. Paul McNamara, both of Columbus.

Judge Matthias was born April 6, 1873, in Gilboa, the son of a country doctor. At 17, he taught school in Putnam County. After working his way through college, he studied law in the Van Wert office of Atty. J. Y. Todd and was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1895.

He commanded a company of volunteers in the Spanish war and served four years as Van Wert city solicitor before becoming a common pleas judge. He served on the bench for 10 years before election in 1914 to the supreme court.

Judge Matthias commanded the Ohio Department, United Spanish War Veterans, in 1927. In 1932, he was the national organization's commander-in-chief. The Van Wert veterans' camp bears his name.

French Await All-Out Assault; Yanks Rush Troops Via Airlift

HANOI, Indochina (AP)—Vietminh divisions, battling to break through into the heart of Dien Bien Phu, stepped up fire today against weary French Union defenders at the northwest corner of the fortress.

Masses of the Communist-led rebels, pressing steadily closer to the French lines, hammered French positions with heavy machineguns and mortars.

The guns apparently were mounted smack up against or under the first line of barbed wire barricades surrounding the strongpoint.

A French high command spokesman said the rebels had not yet launched any infantry attacks on the corner.

French guns thundered an echoing answer to the Vietminh fire. The bastion's defenders also rushed a buildup of defenses in the long string of winding trenches barring the rebels' path to the heart of the fortress. The French poured tons of ammunition and supplies into the shrinking defense lines.

Township Clerk Says Pay Too High

COLUMBUS (AP)—A state examiner's report showed today J. O. Wyle, clerk of Liberty Twp. in Butler County, turned down $708 in pay between 1947 and 1952.

The examiner quoted Wyle as saying he felt his annual salary of $350 was ample for his services.

Wyle refused to pay himself two per cent of annual township expenditures in excess of $5,000 a year to which he was entitled.

Tighter Federal Regulation On Housing Loans Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) predicted today Congress will hedge any new housing legislation with restrictions "absolutely blocking" builders from getting government - insured loans greater than construction costs.

Capehart is chairman of the Senate Banking Committee now investigating housing scandals which, government officials say, have brought "windfall" profits of millions of dollars to builders of apartment projects.

The committee called for testimony today from the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards, the American Bankers Assn. and life insurance companies.

Capehart said:

"We are through with any approach to the housing situation which would allow builders to make profits out of mortgages. There is no reason why the building industry should have to depend on making money out of guaranteed loans."

The apartment - project loan program under investigation expired in 1950, but some projects still are under construction.

The law allowed the Federal Housing Administration to insure loans covering 90 per cent of the estimated construction cost of a project. Officials have testified that in at least 1,149 out of some 7,000 projects built under the program, the insured loan exceeded the final project cost.

Capehart said that in any future housing programs, including both rental and sales projects, there should be "no question but that a builder must be forced to return to the lender any excess loan above the final cost of the project."

Such action would be aimed at preventing builders from pocketing the difference between the amount of the loan and the building cost.

There have been charges that some builders were able to do this on FHA-insured projects by fixing rents high enough to pay off loans which exceeded the cost of the projects.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va), also probing big profits made by some builders, estimated that tenants in the 1,149 projects are now paying rents from 15 to 25 per cent too high.

Government officials have offered no encouragement that these tenants could ever get rebates.

While millions watched via nationwide television, the Senate Investigations Subcommittee today opened its formal hearing on the McCarthy-Army squabble and attempted to find an answer to the question: Who's lying?

HOUSING — Chairman Capehart (R-Ind) of the Senate Banking Committee predicts Congress will arm new housing legislation with restrictions that would prevent builders from getting government-insured loans bigger than construction costs.

Capehart's group is looking into housing scandals involving allegedly heavy "windfall" profits to builders of apartment projects under a post-World War II program. Also under study are charges that householders all over the country were fleeced by unscrupulous home repair salesmen and that the Federal Housing Administration failed to halt the abuses.

Kidnaped Baby Returned Home

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Mrs. Billie Marie Kemplin, 29, had her children all together again today. She returned home yesterday from Nashville, Tenn., with her 4-month-old baby, Janie Marie, who had been missing since April 13. A baby sitter, listed as Bertha Jane Miller, is being sought for kidnaping. She had been hired to care for the four Kemplin children but left, taking the baby. It was found Tuesday in Hohenwald, Tenn., near Nashville where a couple already had signed papers for legal adoption of the child.

Dry Spell Hits Low; Memorial Lake Gets Hot

It finally happened, in this crazy, mixed-up world of ours! Memorial Lake caught fire, and burned so furiously it required two trips by Circleville fire department.

Flames began raging through the wooded patches and brush at the lake site about 1 p. m., and firefighters converged on the spot in Washington Township. Then, another blaze in the same spot was discovered about 3:15 p. m.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said it appeared as though careless campers or mushroom hunters had started the fires. There was no serious loss to the property.

But it's on the records here today, and at the fire station they'll tell you it was bound to happen sooner or later, "the dry spell being what it is."

MEMORIAL LAKE, the center of a long controversy because it isn't a lake, and never has been, finally "ran so dry because of a poorly constructed dam" that it burst into flame.

There was no immediate estimate on how many acres the fire covered. Neither was there any immediate confirmation of the report that a survey is being made to determine this point.

OSU Student Held In Tax Fraud Try

COLUMBUS (AP)—Fred Herman Sapero, 20, who insists "they got the wrong man," yesterday was arrested for attempted income tax fraud.

Sapero, an Ohio State University student from New York City, was arrested after he opened a postal box at a branch postoffice here. He was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Robert W. Newlon.

Treasury agents claim Sapero filed two income tax returns using the same name but different employers addresses. Each return had about $350 due in refunds.

Burke Fears Bill To Hike Fuel Gas Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Ohioans in 400 communities will pay bigger gas bills if a new Federal Power Commission decision is allowed to stand, Sen. Burke (D-Ohio) said today.

Burke deplored the decision as a "raid" on the pockets of gas users all over the nation. He urged mayors of large Ohio cities to come to Washington May 6-7 to "fight" the ruling at a Senate commerce subcommittee hearing.

The 4-1 ruling would permit companies producing their own gas to assign for rate-making purposes, a "field price" to gas from their own wells.

This means, Burke said, the FPC is switching its policy to allow gas rates to be figured on the basis of present value of reserves intead of on original investment, as has been the practice.

This bill, Burke said, would have the effect of reversing the FPC decision, fixing the value of gas reserves held by transmission companies at not more than original cost for rate computations.

"The Panhandle decision," Burke stated, "came after three years of litigation.

"But it followed swiftly upon passage of the unwise Hinshaw bill, which took East Ohio Gas Co., of Cleveland and therefore other distributors, from under federal control."

Burke unsuccessfully fought that bill in his maiden speech on the Senate floor. Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) debated for the bill.

Long-Awaited Dispute Opens In Washington

Leadoff Witness Says Cohn, Senator Both Phone To Aid Schine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Miles Reber testified today that in 10 years as Army liaison officer with Congress he recalled no case where he was "put under greater pressure" than he was in demands for an officer's commission for G. David Schine, aide to Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

Reber, who told senators investigating the McCarthy-Army row that "unusual" metrods were used to seek a commission for Schine.

"It wasn't normal action, Reber said in describing what he called appeals by McCarthy and Roy Cohn, chief counsel of McCarthy's Senate investigating subcommittee.

During the period from July 17 to July 31 of last year, Reber said, he received an average of about two telephone calls a day from Cohn, chief counsel to McCarthy, regarding Schine.

Reber said there also were "two or three calls" from McCarthy, and that earlier the senator had called him to his office to talk about a commission for Schine.

At that time, Reber was the Army's liaison officer with Congress. He is now commanding general of U. S. Army forces in the western European area.

Reber was the leadoff witness as long-heralded hearings began on the stormy row between McCarthy and top Army Department officials.

THE DISPUTE turns on the contention McCarthy and his assistants sought by "improper means" to win preferred treatment for Schine and suggested their own investigation of the Army might be eased if this was done.

Denying this, McCarthy asserts the charges as to him and Schine were designed to interfere with (a) his investigation of communism in the Army, and (b) an investigation of what he termed "misconduct and possibly law violations" by H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defense.

McCarthy threw the hearings into a hassle at the outset by demanding that the Army officials critical of him present their cases as individuals, not as "the Department of the Army."

45 Wine And Dine At Ghost Party Given By Wealthy Dead Michigander

DETROIT (AP)—Forty-five convivial folk wined and dined last night as guests of a dead man who wanted them to "have the last one on me."

The will of Carl Clarke, a wealthy bachelor who died last Nov. 17 at the age of 79, called for a party to be thrown to divide up 261 personal "trinkets" left over from his half-million-dollar estate. The rest of his fortune, made as president of the Monroe (Mich.) Steel Castings Co., went to nine charities.

The objects, like the party, were bizaare. They ranged from a tattered pair of snowshoes and an old-fashioned vacuum cleaner to original oil paintings and an etching of Abraham Lincoln.

Among the guests was Gordon MacEdward, a 66-year-old printer who had known Clarke for 35 years.

"He was not an eccentric man," said MacEdward. "He was a quiet man who shunned publicity. He would wilt the grass over his grave if he knew that the press was here eating the same fillet mignon his friends are having.

"Carl was a man who appreciated things in life that we guests can't comprehend. He never looked at women. He fought all his life for the rights of the American Indian and Negroes.

"Most of the people at this party are members of the 'Wednesday Nighters Club' which Carl started back in 1914."

Clarke's club consisted of a stag group which gathered monthly, mostly at his apartment, to hear lectures on the fine arts by authorities.

Friends of Clarke and their wives ate $50-a-plate dinners while a string ensemble played from a stage and movie cameras ground away.

Guests filed by one by one to draw a number from a silk top hat. The person holding No. 1 got first choice of Clarke's personal effects, and so on until the 45 had picked. Then the numbers were reversed until the articles were gone.

What prompted this odd way of dividing the pieces? "Carl didn't know what we treasured," said MacEdward. "So he picked this way to let us have what we wanted."

DELAWARE (AP)—Two Ohio Wesleyan University students have been awarded fellowships which will enable them to continue their education after June graduation.

Roland Long of Steubenville was named to win a $2,100 Gordon McKay Fellowship at Harvard University this year. He will study electronics.

Nolan E. Smith of Lima won a $1,500 Woodrow Wilson Fellowship to study literature and the humanities at the University of Toronto.

Township Clerk Says Pay Too High

COLUMBUS (AP)—A state examiner's report showed today J. O. Wyle, clerk of Liberty Twp. in Butler County, turned down $708 in pay between 1947 and 1952.

The examiner quoted Wyle as saying he felt his annual salary of $350 was ample for his services.

Wyle refused to pay himself two per cent of annual township expenditures in excess of $5,000 a year to which he was entitled.

Tighter Federal Regulation On Housing Loans Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) predicted today Congress will hedge any new housing legislation with restrictions "absolutely blocking" builders from getting government - insured loans greater than construction costs.

Capehart is chairman of the Senate Banking Committee now investigating housing scandals which, government officials say, have brought "windfall" profits of millions of dollars to builders of apartment projects.

The committee called for testimony today from the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards, the American Bankers Assn. and life insurance companies.

Capehart said:

"We are through with any approach to the housing situation which would allow builders to make profits out of mortgages. There is no reason why the building industry should have to depend on making money out of guaranteed loans."

The apartment - project loan program under investigation expired in 1950, but some projects still are under construction.

The law allowed the Federal Housing Administration to insure loans covering 90 per cent of the estimated construction cost of a project. Officials have testified that in at least 1,149 out of some 7,000 projects built under the program, the insured loan exceeded the final project cost.

Capehart said that in any future housing programs, including both rental and sales projects, there should be "no question but that a builder must be forced to return to the lender any excess loan above the final cost of the project."

Such action would be aimed at preventing builders from pocketing the difference between the amount of the loan and the building cost.

There have been charges that some builders were able to do this on FHA-insured projects by fixing rents high enough to pay off loans which exceeded the cost of the projects.

Sen. Byrd (D-Va), also probing big profits made by some builders, extimated that tenants in the 1,149 projects are now paying rents from 15 to 25 per cent too high.

Government officials have offered no encouragement that these tenants could ever get rebates.

Capitol Hill Highlights

While millions watched via nationwide television, the Senate Investigations Subcommittee today opened its formal hearing on the McCarthy-Army squabble and attempted to find an answer to the question: Who's lying?

HOUSING — Chairman Capehart (R-Ind) of the Senate Banking Committee predicts Congress will arm new housing legislation with restrictions that would prevent builders from getting government-insured loans bigger than construction costs.

Capehart's group is looking into housing scandals involving allegedly heavy "windfall" profits to builders of apartment projects under a post-World War II program. Also under study are charges that householders all over the country were fleeced by unscrupulous home repair salesmen and that the Federal Housing Administration failed to halt the abuses.

FARM—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) says he expects the Senate to beat down a move to attach to a pending wool price support bill an amendment to extend through the next two crop years the present rigid high price props for major field crops. The Eisenhower administration favors a new farm price support system based on flexible props.

Kidnaped Baby Returned Home

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Mrs. Billie Marie Kemplin, 29, had her children all together again today. She returned home yesterday from Nashville, Tenn., with her 4-month-old baby, Janie Marie, who had been missing since April 13. A baby sitter, listed as Bertha Jane Miller, is being sought for kidnaping. She had been hired to care for the four Kemplin children but left, taking the baby. It was found Tuesday in Hohenwald, Tenn., near Nashville where a couple already had signed papers for legal adoption of the child.

Dry Spell Hits Low; Memorial Lake Gets Hot

It finally happened, in this crazy, mixed-up world of ours! Memorial Lake caught fire, and burned so furiously it required two trips by Circleville fire department.

Flames began raging through the wooded patches and brush the lake site about 1 p. m., and firefighters converged on the spot in Washington Township. Then, another blaze in the same spot was discovered about 3:15 p. m.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise said it appeared as though careless campers or mushroom hunters had started the fires. There was no serious loss to the property.

But it's on the records here today, and at the fire station they'll tell you it was bound to happen sooner or later, "the dry spell being what it is."

MEMORIAL LAKE, the center of a long controversy because it isn't a lake, and never has been, finally "ran so dry because of a poorly constructed dam" that it burst into flame.

There was no immediate estimate on how many acres the fire covered. Neither was there any immediate confirmation of the report that a survey is being made to determine this point.

OSU Student Held In Tax Fraud Try

COLUMBUS (AP)—Fred Herman Sapero, 20, who insists "they got the wrong man," yesterday was arrested for attempted income tax fraud.

Sapero, an Ohio State University student from New York City, was arrested after he opened a postal box at a branch postoffice here. He was arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Robert W. Newlon.

Treasury agents claim Sapero filed two income tax returns using the same name but different employers addresses. Each return had about $350 due in refunds.

Burke Fears Bill To Hike Fuel Gas Cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Ohioans in 400 communities will pay bigger gas bills if a new Federal Power Commission decision is allowed to stand, Sen. Burke (D-Ohio) said today.

Burke deplored the decision as a "raid" on the pockets of gas users all over the nation. He urged mayors of large Ohio cities to come to Washington May 6-7 to "fight" the ruling at a Senate commerce subcommittee hearing.

The 4-1 ruling would permit companies producing their own gas to assign for rate-making purposes, a "field price" to gas from their own wells.

This means, Burke said, the FPC is switching its policy to allow gas rates to be figured on the basis of present value of reserves intead of on original investment, as has been the practice.

The Senate commerce subcommittee on business and consumer interests is considering a bill introduced by Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich).

This bill, Burke said, would have the effect of reversing the FPC decision, fixing the value of gas reserves held by transmission companies at not more than original cost for rate computations.

"The Panhandle decision," Burke stated, "came after three years of litigation.

"But it followed swiftly upon passage of the unwise Hinshaw bill, which took East Ohio Gas Co., of Cleveland and therefore other distributors, from under federal control."

Long-Awaited Dispute Opens In Washington

Leadoff Witness Says Cohn, Senator Both Phone To Aid Schine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Miles Reber testified today that in 10 years as Army liaison officer with Congress he recalled no case where he was "put under greater pressure" than he was in demands for an officer's commission for G. David Schine, aide to Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis).

Reber, who told senators investigating the McCarthy-Army row that "unusual" metrods were used to seek a commission for Schine.

"It wasn't normal action, Reber said in describing what he called appeals by McCarthy and Roy Cohn, chief counsel of McCarthy's Senate investigating subcommittee.

During the period from July 17 to July 31 of last year, Reber said, he received an average of about two telephone calls a day from Cohn, chief counsel to McCarthy, regarding Schine.

Reber said there also were "two or three calls" from McCarthy, and that earlier the senator had called him to his office to talk about a commission for Schine.

At that time, Reber was the Army's liaison officer with Congress. He is now commanding general of U. S. Army forces in the western European area.

Reber was the leadoff witness as long-heralded hearings began on the stormy row between McCarthy and top Army Department officials.

THE DISPUTE turns on the contention McCarthy and his assistants sought by "improper means" to win preferred treatment for Schine and suggested their own investigation of the Army might be eased if this was done.

Denying this, McCarthy asserts the charges as to him and Schine were designed to interfere with (a) his investigation of communism in the Army, and (b) an investigation of what he termed "misconduct and possibly law violations" by H. Struve Hensel, assistant secretary of defense.

McCarthy threw the hearings into a hassle at the outset by demanding that the Army officials critical of him present their cases as individuals, not as "the Department of the Army."

The "bill of particulars" against McCarthy was signed not by the

3 Soviet Agents Surrender To U.S.

BONN, Germany (AP)—Three Soviet agents sent to West Germany on a murder mission have given themselves up to U. S. authorities.

An American spokesman here said the agents, a Russian MVD (Secret police) captain and two East Germans, had been assigned to kill a member of an anti-Communist Russian group in Frankfurt called the NTS.

But he said the three surrendered and disclosed the plot to American counter-espionage agents.

Ohio Small Crime Rate Up In 1953

WASHINGTON (AP)—The FBI says murders and burglaries in Ohio cities declined last year but the number of rape and some lesser crimes increased.

On the rise in 149 Ohio cities with a combined population of 4,629,078 were rape, up from 326 to 363; robbery from 2,042 to 2,260; aggravated assault from 1,996 to 2,043; larceny-theft from 42,328 to 43,965 and auto theft, from 5,810 to 6,100. Decreases were recorded in murder, from 201 to 199; manslaughter 148 to 137 and burglary 13,564 to 12,867.

Light Airplane Pilot Is Killed

ST. CLAIRSVILLE (AP)—A light airplane, making a landing approach to nearby Alderman Airport yesterday, struck electric power lines and crashed. The pilot was killed, his passenger injured.

The dead man was George Sorenson, 64, of Fairview Park near Cleveland. The passenger, Curtis Marling, 27, of Cleveland, was going to Wheeling, W. Va., to visit his mother, Mrs. Eldridge Marling, who was recovering in a hospital from an operation.

45 Wine And Dine At Ghost Party Given By Wealthy Dead Michigander

DETROIT (AP)—Forty-five convivial folk wined and dined last night as guests of a dead man who wanted them to "have the last one on me."

The will of Carl Clarke, a wealthy bachelor who died last Nov. 17 at the age of 79, called for a party to be thrown to divide up 261 personal "trinkets" left over from his half-million-dollar estate. The rest of his fortune, made as president of the Monroe (Mich.) Steel Castings Co., went to nine charities.

The objects, like the party, were bizaare. They ranged from a tattered pair of snowshoes and an old-fashioned vacuum cleaner to original oil paintings and an etching of Abraham Lincoln.

Among the guests was Gordon MacEdward, a 66-year-old printer who had known Clarke for 35 years.

"He was not an eccentric man," said MacEdward. "He was a quiet man who shunned publicity. He would wilt the grass over his grave if he knew that the press was here eating the same fillet mignon his friends are having.

"Carl was a man who appreciated things in life that we guests can't comprehend. He never looked at women. He fought all his life for the rights of the American Indian and Negroes.

"Most of the people at this party are members of the 'Wednesday Nighters Club' which Carl started back in 1914."

Clarke's club consisted of a stag group which gathered monthly, mostly at his apartment, to hear lectures on the fine arts by authorities.

Friends of Clarke and their wives ate $50-a-plate dinners while a string ensemble played from a stage and movie cameras ground away.

Guests filed by one by one to draw a number from a silk top hat. The person holding No. 1 got first choice of Clarke's personal effects, and so on until the 45 had picked. Then the numbers were reversed until the articles were gone.

What prompted this odd way of dividing the pieces? "Carl didn't know what we treasured," said MacEdward. "So he picked this way to let us have what we wanted."

THE VIETMINH now holds trenches on the main Dien Bien Phu air strip and are within grenade-throwing distance of some French positions. Masses of rebel infantry moved into the two northern outposts captured from the French.

As the embattled defenders braced for the next all-out Vietminh assault, expected at any time, help was on its way. American C124s carrying French parachute troops were enroute to Indochina from France.

In Wiesbaden, Germany, a U. S. Air Force spokesman said today that the American airlift of French paratroopers is "detouring around India."

Prime minister Nehru announced earlier today the troop ferry would not be permitted to cross his country, a key link on the normal air route to the Far East.

The spokesman at the Air Force's European headquarters here refused to divulge the route being followed by the Giant C124 globemasters. Nor would he say whether they were landing in Ceylon, the British Commonwealth dominion off India's southern tip.

"But they aren't flying over India," he declared, adding:

"All I can say is that the problem has been very well solved."

Despite the "detour around India," the Air Force spokesman observed, it is still closer to take the paratroopers for besieged Dien Bien Phu via that route than fly them to the United States and across the Pacific.

The direct route from Paris to Indochina, he pointed out, is 8,500 miles, while the westward route would be 14,000 miles.

He also termed "highly improbable" a suggestion that the planes might be landing in East or West Pakistan for refueling and then skirting India to the north. That would take them inside the southern border of Communist China and Chinese-occupied Tibet.

Replying to Communist questioners, Nehru told the Indian Parliament in New Delhi today that his policy is "not to allow any foreign troops to pass through or over India, by air or any other means."

Long-Awaited Dispute Opens In Washington

individuals, but by an attorney for the Army Department.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) noted McCarthy's own bill of particulars was signed "Joe McCarthy, chairman." He suggested that under McCarthy's point of order the word "chairman" should be stricken.

The fencing over this was dropped when Acting Chairman Mundt (R-SD) ruled since the formal complaint against McCarthy was not then before the committee, the point of order could not be raised now. He said McCarthy could bring it up again later if he chose.

APPEARING in uniform, Reber testified under protest from McCarthy (that it was "hearsay" evidence) that Schine was "impatient" when he was asked to fillout forms for a possible Army commission on last July 16.

Reber said the Army Transportation Corps, the provost marshal and the office of the chief of psychological warfare all found that Schine lacked qualifications for a commission.

Reber related after Schine was turned down for an Army commission Cohn asked Reber to see whether a commission could be obtained in the Air Force or the Navy.

Ray Jenkins, special attorney for the subcommittee, began a cross-examination of Reber.

He brought out that Reber received many telephone calls with reference to inductees and prospective draftees from senators, representatives and others.

Jenkins asked whether Reber felt at any time that McCarthy was "high pressuring" him.

Reber said he hadn't felt McCarthy was "high pressuring me to any great extent" but had thought McCarthy wanted a "favorable answer."

In opening the hearings, Mundt, acting chairman, said "the reputations, the actions and perhaps the integrity of responsible public officials" are under challenge.

The Senate investigations subcommittee will "follow the evidence wherever it leads," Mundt told the jampacked scene in the Senate caucus room.

Mundt reviewed the differing charges and said "each participant in this dispute, like each member of our subcommittee, will be carefully checked and watched."

The charges made by each side, as well as their implications, Mundt said, "are of such a grave and serious nature as to have caused great concern on the part of this subcommittee as well as on the part of the American people."

Sitting as the jury are four Republican and three Democratic members of the subcommittee, which McCarthy normally heads. He has stepped off for the duration of this investigation, likely to last two weeks or more.

AIDING THE senators is a special staff headed by Jenkins, a Republican lawyer from Knoxville, Tenn., who pledged that "the facts will be presented fully, fairly and fearlessly."

Preparations indicated that press coverage would equal or surpass that given other big Senate hearings of recent years: Pearl Harbor, Howard Hughes' wartime contracts, McCarthy's charges of Communists in the State Department, the Kefauver crime hearings, the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

And the expansion of television afforded a look at the proceedings to millions more than saw any of those inquiries. The NBC, ABC and Du Mont networks arranged to carry the full sessions, at least at the start, and CBS to carry excerpts.

McCarthy, in a speech in Texas yesterday, referred to the hearings as "this television show of Adams vs. Cohn."

But almost at the same time, Mundt, chosen to preside over the investigation, said he regards McCarthy as one of six principals.

He named the others as:

Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr, chief counsel and chief of staff, respectively, for the McCarthy subcommittee; Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens, Asst. Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel, Army Counselor John G. Adams.

Mundt arranged for morning and afternoon sessions in the big red-carpeted caucus room of the Senate Office Building.

HE DIRECTED the Army to lead off, with all witnesses prepared to submit under oath to the "searching inquiry" he promised into the dispute. Briefly, it involves:

1. The Army's charges that McCarthy, Cohn and Carr "sought by improper means" to win special Army favors for Pvt. G. David Schine, wealthy New Yorker who was an unpaid subcommittee consultant before being drafted last November.

2. McCarthy's countercharges that Stevens and Adams had tried to "discredit the investigations subcommittee and to force a discontinuance of our hearings exposing Communist infiltration in their department."

3. McCarthy's assertion that Hensel supervised preparation of the army report about him in an attempt to block off a subcommittee investigation for "misconduct and possible law violation."

Hensel retorted, "Bare - faced lies," and there have been denials of the other accusations all around.

President Eisenhower has voiced confidence in Stevens; Secretary of Defense Wilson praised both Stevens and Hensel.

As is customary, subcommittee members and their staff may question all witnesses freely. In a departure from normal procedure, the principals were granted permission to cross-examine one another.

Mundt has expressed an informal opinion that no principal could claim immunity from prosecution on any criminal charges, including perjury, which might grow out of the inquiry.

Jim Tatum, Maryland Coach, and Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma coach, were on the football coaching staff of the powerful Iowa Pre-Flight Naval Training School team in 1941.

"many informal complaints that quite a bit of property was escaping taxation completely in Pickaway County." So board examiners examined building permits and checked them against the tax duplicate, which lists the amount of taxes for which each piece of property in the county is assessed.

The State Board of Tax Appeals held a hearing in Circleville on April 5. Of the findings at that hearing, the board in its latest report said:

"It is obvious that many recently constructed buildings in the township and other taxing districts in the county are not on the tax list and duplicate of real property subject to taxation for the tax year 1953."

The board determined:

"That the taxpayers of Pickaway County who have real property on the tax list and duplicate, and who are paying taxes, are actually paying more real property taxes than they should, due to the fact that many thousands of dollars of taxable real property value, which should be bearing its fair and just share of the taxation burden, is escaping taxation completely."

THE ORDER further pointed out that:

"A casual inspection in and around Circleville indicates a number of buildings have been erected but old land values have been kept."

The order said "the county auditor failed to assess all real property subject to taxation. . . . and the board of tax appeals is of the opinion that the real property in Pickaway County is unequally and improperly assessed for taxation."

It ordered the county auditor to use trained and experienced persons to conduct the reappraisal and sent copies of the order to the auditor, county prosecutor and county commissioners.

The board said aggregate value of real property in Pickaway County for the 1953 tax year, as set forth in the tax abstract, is $39,761,140, an increase of $84,990 over the previous tax year.

"But there is not included in this abstract the value of many recently constructed buildings in the county," the reporte noted.

Prospects of a county-wide reappraisal were recently emphasized here by The Herald.

West Big 3 Prepare For Geneva Talks

Korea And Indochina Strategy Being Set Up Against Commies

PARIS (AP)—The foreign ministers of the Western Big Three continued meetings here today to put their plans for the Geneva conference in final form.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault got together last night, shortly after Dulles arrived from Washington, for talks on the problems which will come up at the parley opening Monday.

British Foreign Secretary Eden was due to join Dulles and Bidault for a session at the French Foreign Office immediately after his arrival by plane today.

Earlier today, the diplomatic chiefs were closeted with their top advisers, working out the daily strategy for the coming talks on Korea and Indochina.

All talks here are being carried on in strictest secrecy in hope the strategy decisions will not leak out before they get to Geneva.

THE ONLY THING that has been disclosed officially about the Big Three meetings in Paris is that they are dealing with both Korea and Indochina and also are taking up a proposed Western reply to Russia's note March 31 offering to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

A completed draft of the reply was expected to be approved in time to be laid before the NATO Council meeting Friday, at which the foreign ministers of all 14 member nations will get together.

Russia offered to join up with NATO (the United Western defense against possible Soviet aggression) if the West would drop plans for a European Defense Community to include West German troops.

The Russians also asked the Western Allies to join them in a European security pact that that would keep Germany permanently disarmed and neutral.

The U. S. State Department announced its rejection of such an idea. It charged Russia with trying to sabotage EDC plans and wreck NATO, leaving Europe dominated by the Soviet bloc. Britain and France followed suit.

The NATO meeting is expected to be limited to a review of world problems, including principally those to be taken up at Geneva consultations on Korea, since nine of the 14 are expected to go on to Geneva as representatives of U.N. members which sent troops to Korea.

THE NATO GROUP also is expected to take up the Indochina question even though tthe war there between the French Union and the Communist-led Vietminh rebels is outside the organization's region of responsibility. Effects of the Indochina war are felt on defense efforts in the West. And the NATO allies approved a resolution two years ago to give all support possible to the French in their fight to keep Indochina out of Communist hands. They are expected to consider just how to implement that resolution.

Amid these intensified international activities, France continued negotiations with Viet Nam on full independence within the French Union for that Indochinese state.

Living Costs Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today lower food and clothing prices brought the nation's living costs down in March for a second straight month, to the lowest point since last July.

Ike Talk Tonight To Stress Ill Effects Of Atomic Fear

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower flies to New York today to call in a major address tonight for help from the nation's newspapers in transforming "an age of atomic hysteria" into an era of world peace.

En route, the President will stop over briefly in Washington to talk informally at the annual convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution and to install a new chairman of the government study commission on federal-state problems.

The trip interrupts an Easter holiday the President started April 13 at the Augusta National Golf Club. He will return to Washington from New York tonight, spend tomorrow in Kentucky and then fly back here for more golf.

The President's half-hour speech tonight before the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York will be carried by the major television and radio networks.

It is scheduled for 9 p. m., EST.

JAMES HAGERTY, White House press secretary, has said the President would appeal to American newspapers to help "transform an age of atomic hysteria and horror into an age of international understanding and cooperative peace."

He said Eisenhower would say that "misconceptions of the aims and aspirations of America, as well as those of the other free nations, reported and circulated here and abroad, often cause needless misunderstanding and friction between the governments and the free peoples of the world."

The President reportedly is deeply concerned, for one thing, about the adverse reaction in some of the free nations to the development and testing of the hydrogen bomb by the United States. He is understood to feel that an unwarranted hysteria has resulted.

In Washington, the President will stop by the White House to watch Meyer Kestnbaum of Chicago take the oath of office as the new chairman of the study commission on intergovernmental relations.

Kestnbaum, president of the Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing firm and chairman of the Committee for Economic Development, was named by Eisenhower late yesterday to succeed the ousted Dr. Clarence Manion, former dean of Notre Dame law school.

County League Set To Open 1954 Campaign

Barring bad weather, the Pickaway County Baseball Tournament gets under way Friday at Ashville and Walnut. The first round of play pits Pickaway against Walnut at 12:30 p. m. and Ashville versus Darby at 3 p. m. These games will be played at Ashville.

Over at Walnut, Scioto meets Jackson at 2:30 p. m. The New Holland-Atlanta game was played earlier this week at Atlanta with New Holland winning, 12-5.

The winners of the two games at Ashville will meet next Monday at 12:30 p. m. on the same ball diamond. Following that game New Holland will play the victor of the Scioto-Jackson contest at 3 p. m. Kinals will be held April 29 at 2 p. m. at Ashville.

According to tournament rules, a trophy will be awarded to the top team only. In case of postponement games will be played the following days, if possible. At least one day must elapse between the playing of postponed games.

BEFORE EACH game, each team will get a 15-minute infield practice period. In the case of a second game on the same day, practice can start 15 minutes after the first game ends.

Each team is to furnish one official per game. The county athletic fund will pay the expenses of the officials and the trophy.

Jail Fall Hurts Columbus Man But Given Fine

Robert R. Shaffer, 29, of Columbus, who had been injured while awaiting trial, in the county jail here on a drunken driving accusation, was fined $100 and costs, sentenced to three days in jail and received a six month's license suspension for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Judge Sterling Lamb passed sentence on Shaffer in Municipal Court Wednesday. Shaffer received a serious head laceration when he slipped on a wet spot on the jail floor and fell striking the back of his head.

According to Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who had arrested Shaffer March 6, he became unruly in the jail. The sheriff said the Columbus man broke two broom handles in the jail house and was swinging a mop when he slipped on a spot that had been made wet by the mop.

Another $100 fine and costs, three days in jail and a six month's operator's license suspension was doled out by Judge Lamb to Charles A. Ridgway, 48, of Cleveland. State Patrolman Ray Hoylman Jr. had arrested Ridgeway and accused him of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Kermit K. Massey, 47, of Jackson, was fined $5 and costs for passing a red light. He was arrested by Officer Max Foruqer.

Fine Followed By Bad Check Claim

An Adelphi man was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, fined $250 and costs, and sentenced to three days in jail by Laurelville Mayor Jim Goodman Wednesday.

Forest Knece, 29, had been in Berger Hospital since early last Saturday morning, recovering from severe facial cuts. State patrolmen reported he wrecked his car about six miles southeast of Laurelville on State Route 56.

Adding to his problems, a warrant was issued against Knece on accusation that he wrote a worthless check. State patrolmen said he made out a check on the Bank of Laurelville to pay for his stay at the hospital. The check was returned to the hospital Wednesday with the notation that there is no such bank in Laurelville, according to the State Patrol.

A call reporting Knece's accident last Saturday came into Circleville city police station about 12:30 a. m. The call was relayed to Patrol headquarters in Columbus, and State Patrolman Carl Wolfinger, who was cruising on duty near here, was dispatched to the scene.

Big Ten Conference football squads are limited by NCAA regulations to 20 spring practice sessions in a 36-day period.

Bond Set, Men Will Be Heard By Grand Jury

Four men, accused of stealing asbestos roof shingles from a home on the Jake Caldwell Farm, 12 miles north of Circleville, were put under $700 bond each and bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge Sterling Lamb Wednesday.

Paul Brobst, 29, Jessie Diles, 29, Verlin McCall, 23, all of Columbus, and George T. Brown, 33, of northern Pickaway County, were charged with "breaking and entering an uninhabited dwelling in the night season and did steal and carry away 19 bundles of shingles valued at $68." All plead guilty.

Brown lives in a small house on the Caldwell property just behind the house from which the shingles were taken. He and the other three men are all brothers-in-law by marriage.

The four were apprehended in Columbus last Monday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Carl White. They confessed after being confronted with the shingles which were traced to a Columbus contractor to whom they had been sold.

THE FOUR MEN admitted breaking into the house which was being remodeled by a contractor who had employed Brobst. There were 52 bundles of shingles, but an aroused dog's barking nearby cut short their efforts at 19 bundles, they said in signed statements to the sheriff.

All four were being held in the county jail.

Red-Led Rebels Step Up Fire Against Fort

ies, one granting independence and the other confirming Vietnam's will put the final approval on these membership in the French Union, will come later, the ministry explained.

It is expected the next full meeting of the negotiating delegations two treaties and that they will be initialed at the same time.

THE VIETMINH now holds trenches on the main Dien Bien Phu air strip and are within grenade-throwing distance of some French positions. Masses of rebel infantry moved into the two northern outposts captured from the French.

As the embattled defenders braced for the next all-out Vietminh assault, expected at any time, help was on its way. American C124s carrying French parachute troops were enroute to Indochina from France.

In Wiesbaden, Germany, a U. S. Air Force spokesman said today that the American airlift of French paratroopers is "detouring around India."

Prime minister Nehru announced earlier today the troop ferry would not be permitted to cross his country, a key link on the normal air route to the Far East.

The spokesman at the Air Force's European headquarters here refused to divulge the route being followed by the Giant C124 globemasters. Nor would he say whether they were landing in Ceylon, the British Commonwealth dominion off India's southern tip.

"But they aren't flying over India," he declared, adding:

"All I can say is that the problem has been very well solved."

Despite the "detour around India," the Air Force spokesman observed, it is still closer to take the paratroopers for besieged Dien Bien Phu via that route than fly them to the United States and across the Pacific.

The direct route from Paris to Indochina, he pointed out, is 8,500 miles, while the westward route would be 14,000 miles.

He also termed "highly improbable" a suggestion that the planes might be landing in East or West Pakistan for refueling and then skirting India to the north. That would take them inside the southern border of Communist China and Chinese-occupied Tibet.

Replying to Communist questioners, Nehru told the Indian Parliament in New Delhi today that his policy is "not to allow any foreign troops to pass through or over India, by air or any other means."

Long-Awaited Dispute Opens In Washington

individuals, but by an attorney for the Army Department.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) noted McCarthy's own bill of particulars was signed "Joe McCarthy, chairman." He suggested that under McCarthy's point of order the word "chairman" should be stricken.

The fencing over this was dropped when Acting Chairman Mundt (R-SD) ruled since the formal complaint against McCarthy was not then before the committee, the point of order could not be raised now. He said McCarthy could bring it up again later if he chose.

APPEARING in uniform, Reber testified under protest from McCarthy (that it was "hearsay" evidence) that Schine was "impatient" when he was asked to fillout forms for a possible Army commission on last July 16.

Reber said the Army Transportation Corps, the provost marshal and the office of the chief of psychological warfare all found that Schine lacked qualifications for a commission.

Reber related after Schine was turned down for an Army commission Cohn asked Reber to see whether a commission could be obtained in the Air Force or the Navy.

Ray Jenkins, special attorney for the subcommittee, began a cross-examination of Reber.

He brought out that Reber received many telephone calls with reference to inductees and prospective draftees from senators, representatives and others.

Jenkins asked whether Reber felt at any time that McCarthy was "high pressuring" him.

Reber said he hadn't felt McCarthy was "high pressuring me to any great extent" but had thought McCarthy wanted a "favorable answer."

In opening the hearings, Mundt, acting chairman, said "the reputations, the actions and perhaps the integrity of responsible public officials" are under challenge.

The Senate investigations subcommittee will "follow the evidence wherever it leads," Mundt told the jampacked scene in the Senate caucus room.

Mundt reviewed the differing charges and said "each participant in this dispute, like each member of our subcommittee, will be carefully checked and watched."

The charges made by each side, as well as their implications, Mundt said, "are of such a grave and serious nature as to have caused great concern on the part of this subcommittee as well as on the part of the American people."

Sitting as the jury are four Republican and three Democratic members of the subcommittee, which McCarthy normally heads. He has stepped off for the duration of this investigation, likely to last two weeks or more.

AIDING THE senators is a special staff headed by Jenkins, a Republican lawyer from Knoxville, Tenn., who pledged that "the facts will be presented fully, fairly and fearlessly."

Preparations indicated that press coverage would equal or surpass that given other big Senate hearings of recent years: Pearl Harbor, Howard Hughes' wartime contracts, McCarthy's charges of Communists in the State Department, the Kefauver crime hearings, the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

And the expansion of television afforded a look at the proceedings to millions more than saw any of those inquiries. The NBC, ABC and Du Mont networks arranged to carry the full sessions, at least at the start, and CBS to carry excerpts.

McCarthy, in a speech in Texas yesterday, referred to the hearings as "this television show of Adams vs. Cohn."

But almost at the same time, Mundt, chosen to preside over the investigation, said he regards McCarthy as one of six principals.

He named the others as:

Roy M. Cohn and Francis P. Carr, chief counsel and chief of staff, respectively, for the McCarthy subcommittee; Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens, Asst. Secretary of Defense H. Struve Hensel, Army Counselor John G. Adams.

Mundt arranged for morning and afternoon sessions in the big red-carpeted caucus room of the Senate Office Building.

HE DIRECTED the Army to lead off, with all witnesses prepared to submit under oath to the "searching inquiry" he promised into the dispute. Briefly, it involves:

1. The Army's charges that McCarthy, Cohn and Carr "sought by improper means" to win special Army favors for Pvt. G. David Schine, wealthy New Yorker who was an unpaid subcommittee consultant before being drafted last November.

2. McCarthy's countercharges that Stevens and Adams had tried to "discredit the investigations subcommittee and to force a discontinuance of our hearings exposing Communist infiltration in their department."

3. McCarthy's assertion that Hensel supervised preparation of the army report about him in an attempt to block off a subcommittee investigation for "misconduct and possible law violation."

Hensel retorted, "Bare - faced lies," and there have been denials of the other accusations all around.

President Eisenhower has voiced confidence in Stevens; Secretary of Defense Wilson praised both Stevens and Hensel.

As is customary, subcommittee members and their staff may question all witnesses freely. In a departure from normal procedure, the principals were granted permission to cross-examine one another.

Mundt has expressed an informal opinion that no principal could claim immunity from prosecution on any criminal charges, including perjury, which might grow out of the inquiry.

Jim Tatum, Maryland Coach, and Bud Wilkinson, Oklahoma coach, were on the football coaching staff of the powerful Iowa Pre-Flight Naval Training School team in 1941.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

BEECHER RIGSBY

Beecher Ray Rigsby of Williamsport died at 3 p. m. Wednesday in University hospital, Columbus, where he was admitted four weeks ago with a heart ailment.

Friends may call in the funeral home at any time.

"many informal complaints that quite a bit of property was escaping taxation completely in Pickaway County." So board examiners examined building permits and checked them against the tax duplicate, which lists the amount of taxes for which each piece of property in the county is assessed.

The State Board of Tax Appeals held a hearing in Circleville on April 5. Of the findings at that hearing, the board in its latest report said:

"It is obvious that many recently constructed buildings in the township and other taxing districts in the county are not on the tax list and duplicate of real property subject to taxation for the tax year 1953."

The board determined:

"That the taxpayers of Pickaway County who have real property on the tax list and duplicate, and who are paying taxes, are actually paying more real property taxes than they should, due to the fact that many thousands of dollars of taxable real property value, which should be bearing its fair and just share of the taxation burden, is escaping taxation completely."

THE ORDER further pointed out that:

"A casual inspection in and around Circleville indicates a number of buildings have been erected but old land values have been kept."

The order said "the county auditor failed to assess all real property subject to taxation. . . .and the board of tax appeals is of the opinion that the real property in Pickaway County is unequally and improperly assessed for taxation."

It ordered the county auditor to use trained and experienced persons to conduct the reappraisal and sent copies of the order to the auditor, county prosecutor and county commissioners.

The board said aggregate value of real property in Pickaway County for the 1953 tax year, as set forth in the tax abstract, is $39,761,140, an increase of $84,990 over the previous tax year.

"But there is not included in this abstract the value of many recently constructed buildings in the county," the reporte noted.

Prospects of a county-wide reappraisal were recently emphasized here by The Herald.

'Superman' (Age 4) Changes His Mind

CLEVELAND (AP) — Four-year-old Arthur Sindelar watched a television program yesterday and then jumped out of a window.

As doctors wheeled him into the emergency room at the hospital, he told them: "I'm Superman."

After they rolled him out with his broken arm in a plaster cast, he admitted sadly: "I'm not really superman."

West Big 3 Prepare For Geneva Talks

Korea And Indochina Strategy Being Set Up Against Commies

PARIS (AP)—The foreign ministers of the Western Big Three continued meetings here today to pu their plans for the Geneva conference in final form.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault got together last night, shortly after Dulles arrived from Washington, for talks on the problems which will come up at the parley opening Monday.

British Foreign Secretary Eden was due to join Dulles and Bidault for a session at the French Foreign Office immediately after his arrival by plane today.

Earlier today, the diplomatic chiefs were closeted with their top advisers, working out the daily strategy for the coming talks on Korea and Indochina.

All talks here are being carried on in strictest secrecy in hope the strategy decisions will not leak out before they get to Geneva.

THE ONLY THING that has been disclosed officially about the Big Three meetings in Paris is that they are dealing with both Korea and Indochina and also are taking up a proposed Western reply to Russia's note March 31 offering to join the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

A completed draft of the reply was expected to be approved in time to be laid before the NATO Council meeting Friday, at which the foreign ministers of all 14 member nations will get together.

Russia offered to join up with NATO (the United Western defense against possible Soviet aggression) if the West would drop plans for a European Defense Community to include West German troops.

The Russians also asked the Western Allies to join them in a European security pact that that would keep Germany permanently disarmed and neutral.

The U. S. State Department announced its rejection of such an idea It charged Russia with trying to sabotage EDC plans and wreck NATO, leaving Europe dominated by the Soviet bloc. Britain and France followed suit.

The NATO meeting is expected to be limited to a review of world problems, including principally those to be taken up at Geneva consultations on Korea, since nine of the 14 are expected to go on to Geneva as representatives of U.N. members which sent troops to Korea.

THE NATO GROUP also is expected to take up the Indochina question even though tthe war there between the French Union and the Communist-led Vietminh rebels is outside the organization's region of responsibility. Effects of the Indochina war are felt on defense efforts in the West. And the NATO allies approved a resolution two years ago to give all support possible to the French in their fight to keep Indochina out of Communist hands. They are expected to consider just how to implement that resolution.

Amid these intensified international activities, France continued negotiations with Viet Nam on full independence within the French Union for that Indochinese state.

JAMES HAGERTY, White House press secretary, has said the President would appeal to American newspapers to help "transform an age of atomic hysteria and horror into an age of international understanding and cooperative peace."

He said Eisenhower would say that "misconceptions of the aims and aspirations of America, as well as those of the other free nations, reported and circulated here and abroad, often cause needless misunderstanding and friction between the governments and the free peoples of the world."

The President reportedly is deeply concerned, for one thing, about the adverse reaction in some of the free nations to the development and testing of the hydrogen bomb by the United States. He is understood to feel that an unwarranted hysteria has resulted.

In Washington, the President will stop by the White House to watch Meyer-Kestnbaum of Chicago take the oath of office as the new chairman of the study commission on intergovernmental relations.

Kestnbaum, president of the Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothing firm and chairman of the Committee for Economic Development, was named by Eisenhower late yesterday to succeed the ousted Dr. Clarence Manion, former dean of Notre Dame law school.

County League Set To Open 1954 Campaign

Barring bad weather, the Pickaway County Baseball Tournament gets under way Friday at Ashville and Walnut. The first round of play pits Pickaway against Walnut at 12:30 p. m. and Ashville versus Darby at 3 p. m. These games will be played at Ashville.

Over at Walnut, Scioto meets Jackson at 2:30 p. m. The New Holland-Atlanta game was played earlier this week at Atlanta with New Holland winning, 12-5.

The winners of the two games at Ashville will meet next Monday at 12:30 p. m. on the same ball diamond. Following that game New Holland will play the victor of the Scioto-Jackson contest at 3 p. m. Finals will be held April 29 at 2 p. m. at Ashville.

According to tournament rules, a trophy will be awarded to the top team only. In case of postponement games will be played the following days, if possible. At least one day must elapse between the playing of postponed games.

BEFORE EACH game, each team will get a 15-minute infield practice period. In the case of a second game on the same day, practice can start 15 minutes after the first game ends.

Each team is to furnish one official per game. The county athletic fund will pay the expenses of the officials and the trophy.

Jail Fall Hurts Columbus Man But Given Fine

Robert R. Shaffer, 29, of Columbus, who had been injured while awaiting trial, in the county jail here on a drunken driving accusation, was fined $100 and costs, sentenced to three days in jail and received a six month's license suspension for operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Judge Sterling Lamb passed sentence on Shaffer in Municipal Court Wednesday. Shaffer received a serious head laceration when he slipped on a wet spot on the jail floor and fell striking the back of his head.

According to Sheriff Charles Radcliff, who had arrested Shaffer March 6, he became unruly in the jail. The sheriff said the Columbus man broke two broom handles in the jail house and was swinging a mop when he slipped on a spot that had been made wet by the mop.

Another $100 fine and costs, three days in jail and a six month's operator's license suspension was doled out by Judge Lamb to Charles A. Ridgway, 48, of Cleveland. State Patrolman Ray Hoylman Jr. had arrested Ridgeway and accused him of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Kermit K. Massey, 47, of Jackson, was fined $5 and costs for passing a red light. He was arrested by Officer Max Foruqer.

Fine Followed By Bad Check Claim

An Adelphi man was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, fined $250 and costs, and sentenced to three days in jail by Laurelville Mayor Jim Goodman Wednesday.

Forest Knece, 29, had been in Berger Hospital since early last Saturday morning, recovering from severe facial cuts. State patrolmen reported he wrecked his car about six miles southeast of Laurelville on State Route 56.

Adding to his problems, a warrant was issued against Knece on accusation that he wrote a worthless check. State patrolmen said he made out a check on the Bank of Laurelville to pay for his stay at the hospital. The check was returned to the hospital Wednesday with the notation that there is no such bank in Laurelville, according to the State Patrol.

A call reporting Knece's accident last Saturday came into Circleville city police station about 12:30 a. m. The call was relayed to Patrol headquarters in Columbus, and State Patrolman Carl Wolfinger, who was cruising on duty near here, was dispatched to the scene.

Big Ten Conference football squads are limited by NCAA regulations to 20 spring practice sessions in a 36-day period.

Bond Set, Men Will Be Heard By Grand Jury

Four men, accused of stealing asbestos roof shingles from a home on the Jake Caldwell Farm, 12 miles north of Circleville, were put under $700 bond each and bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge Sterling Lamb Wednesday.

Paul Brobst, 29, Jessie Diles, 29, Verlin McCall, 23, all of Columbus, and George T. Brown, 33, of northern Pickaway County, were charged with "breaking and entering an uninhabited dwelling in the night season and did steal and carry away 19 bundles of shingles valued at $68." All plead guilty.

Brown lives in a small house on the Caldwell property just behind the house from which the shingles were taken. He and the other three men are all brothers-in-law by marriage.

The four were apprehended in Columbus last Monday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Deputy Carl White. They confessed after being confronted with the shingles which were traced to a Columbus contractor to whom they had been sold.

THE FOUR MEN admitted breaking into the house which was being remodeled by a contractor who had employed Brobst. There were 52 bundles of shingles, but an aroused dog's barking nearby cut short their efforts at 19 bundles, they said in signed statements to the sheriff.

All four were being held in the county jail.

U.S. Lumber Experts See Good Future

Million New Homes Predicted Although Production Declines

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—The raw materials for America's homes are coming from the Pacific Northwest's forests at a slower rate today than last year. But lumber mill spokesmen say they are still betting on at least a million new houses rising this year—almost as many as last.

The plywood industry, moreover, is going the lumbermen one better. Despite declining shipments, it goes on producing at or hear capacity, confident that demand from builders will catch up in coming weeks.

Lumber prices, shipments and orders, however, at present are all running below this time last year. And numerous small marginal mills and logging operations have closed down, because prices dropped below the break-even point.

The large concerns are betting on a spring pickup in construction to justify their hopes that total production this year will finally come within 5 per cent of 1953's fat output.

They point to an unusually good February home-building performance as one sign, and as another to the fact that in recent weeks orders have topped winter-retarded output.

Prices of lumber and plywood, now down by 10 to 20 per cent from Korean War highs, are expected to fluctuate with the ups and downs of the construction industry.

And with some types of timber used by home builders, prices may react to Canadia nlumber exports and to overseas markets for American forest products.

So far this year American shipments of Douglas fir to Australia and South Africa have been topping those from British Columbia—with the rise of the value of the Canadian dollar in foreign exchange said to be giving the Americans aprice advantage.

But last year Canada lost part of its English market when the United Kingdom bought lumber from Scandinavia and Russia. The Canadians then sold part of their output in the Eastern U. S. market—weakening prices for Americen lumber, industry spokesmen here say.

There are other problems botheringthe Northwest's No, 1 industry. Booming postwar building brough many marginal mills into operation for a quick harvest of dollars. When production outran demand and prices cracked, these mills folded and brought spot depression to some small communities.

In some instances the easily available timber has been cut, and costs mount as the lumbermen go farther afield.

A threatened strike could affect the production picture. Th CIO Woodworkrs' Union, representing some 50,000 workers in sawmills and logging camps, has set May 3 as the date for an industry-wide strike unless its demands for wage increases and other benefits are met.

But those who sell lumber see their best chance of finding a million-home market for their product to lie in possible congressional action to ease mortgage financing terms still more.

Competition from other building materials is growing. The lumbermen are fighting back with promotional campaigns to induce more use of their product and with efforts to get building codes revised.

If your family enjoys unusually tender fried chicken, cut the bird into serving portions and then steam it until tender. Now dip it into any preferred batter and fry in deep fat until golden-brown.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

Leg of lamb will be a favorite weekend feature in the nation's food stores this week, and food men say you'll find good value for your money in various cuts of veal.

Where leg of lamb is a special prices will be down from two to as much as 10 cents a pound from last weekend. Some stores also will offer lamb chops and shoulder roast at lower prices.

Veal continues to be nominated as one of your best bets in meats. One large chain which is featuring it compares the prices it was charging in New York on Jan. 1 with those that will prevail this weekend. As the year began, it was selling veal shoulder roast at 49 cents a pound and it's now 35. Boneless shoulder, 69 cents then, is 49 cents now. And veal cutlets, $1.25 then, are $1.10 now.

Most beef and pork cuts will be the same price as last week or a bit higher. In the wholesale markets, beef, pork and lamb rose this week.

Chicken prices have risen slightly, and you may have to pay more ofr fryers this weekend. However, stewing chickens will be featured in several sections of the country. Eggs will be around two cents lower in many places.

The government is still faced with overwhelming stocks of butter, and there are reports in Washington that the Agriculture Department is considering a plan to make it available to consumers for around 45 cents a pound. However, 45-cent butter may be some way off.

Coffee prices went up again this week. Several leading chain stores tacked another four cents on the price of a pound of their own brands.

Among the best buys in vegetables this week are golden and green pascal celery from Florida, old crop onions and potatoes, new crop cabbage and eggplant.

French Minister Lauds U.S. B26

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—France's air minister, Louis Christiaens, praised the "versatile" B26 last night and called it one of the most important weapons in the Indochinese conflict. He arrived at Wright-Patterson AFB while on a tour of U.S. Air Force bases.

He said more American planes are needed by French forces in Indochina. A good airborne supply is absolutely essential for victory there, he said.

Law Requires X-Rays For Food Handlers

R. T. Blaney, in charge of food service inspections for Pickaway County and the city of Circleville, reminded food handlers Thursday that they are required by state law to have chest x-rays taken "when such service is available."

Free chest x-rays are being given in the district this week under the annual program of the Pickaway County Tuberculosis and Health Association. And on Friday and Saturday the mobile unit will be in Circleville to handle x-rays for persons living anywhere in the county.

The Friday-Saturday portion of the unit's schedule, arranged especially on those days for the general public, is as follows:

Friday: At Clifton Motor Sales, Circleville, 10:30 a. m. to 1 p. m., 2 p. m. to 5 p. m., and 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Saturday: At Clifton Motor Sales, Circleville, 9 a m. to noon, 1 p. m. to 5 p. m., and 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

On Friday, in addition to the hours specified for the general public, the mobile x-ray unit will be at Lincoln Plastics from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m.

Reports Hint New Local Trade Gain

There were new signs of trade gains for the district earlier this month.

Meanwhile, State Treasurer Roger W. Tracy reported an upward influence was also making itself felt statewide, judging by sales tax collections, normally a reliable business barometer.

Pickaway County Treasurer Bob Colville reported receipts in this district for the week ending April 3 were more than $1,000 over the corresponding week for last year. This year's figure for that week was $6,586.25, as compared with $5,507.63 for the same week in 1953.

Colville's report coincided with Tracy's announcement that the first quarter downward trend in sales tax collections is beginning to show signs of leveling off.

Also referring to the week ended April 3 as compared with the corresponding week last year, on a statewide basis, Tracy said collections were up in the food and building classifications, leading gains likewise noted in several other classes—including oil stations, auto accessories, radio-music, office equipment and drug stores.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

Leg of lamb will be a favorite weekend feature in the nation's food stores this week, and food men say you'll find good value for your money in various cuts of veal.

Where leg of lamb is a special prices will be down from two to as much as 10 cents a pound from last weekend. Some stores also will offer lamb chops and shoulder roast at lower prices.

Veal continues to be nominated as one of your best bets in meats. One large chain which is featuring it compares the prices it was charging in New York on Jan. 1 with those that will prevail this weekend. As the year began, it was selling veal shoulder roast at 49 cents a pound and it's now 35. Boneless shoulder, 69 cents then, is 49 cents now. And veal cutlets, $1.25 then, are $1.10 now.

Most beef and pork cuts will be the same price as last week or a bit higher. In the wholesale markets, beef, pork and lamb rose this week.

Chicken prices have risen slightly, and you may have to pay more ofr fryers this weekend. However, stewing chickens will be featured in several sections of the country. Eggs will be around two cents lower in many places.

The government is still faced with overwhelming stocks of butter, and there are reports in Washington that the Agriculture Department is considering a plan to make it available to consumers for around 45 cents a pound. However, 45-cent butter may be some way off.

Coffee prices went up again this week. Several leading chain stores tacked another four cents on the price of a pound of their own brands.

Among the best buys in vegetables this week are golden and green pascal celery from Florida, old crop onions and potatoes, new crop cabbage and eggplant.

French Minister Lauds U.S. B26

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—France's air minister, Louis Christiaens, praised the "versatile" B26 last night and called it one of the most important weapons in the Indochinese conflict. He arrived at Wright-Patterson AFB while on a tour of U.S. Air Force bases.

He said more American planes are needed by French forces in Indochina. A good airborne supply is absolutely essential for victory there, he said.

Legionnaire Says Monsoons To Help French In Battle

Editor's Note — French military censorship in Indochina has prevented correspondents there from filing eyewitness accounts of the bitter fighting raging at the besieged French Union fortress of Dien Bien Phu. Here is a report from a veteran of that epic struggle, a German just returned home after release from the French Foreign Legion.

By ULRICH GRUDINSKI

FLENSBURG, Germany, (AP)—"I see it this way, knowing the men who are fighting for Gen. de Castries—if they can hold out until the last of April or the first of May, when the rainy season begins, the French forces can win at Dien Bien Phu."

That opinion of the bloody northwest Indochina battle was voiced here today by Horst Lemke, a blond 24-year-old German electrician. After five years in the French Foreign Legion, he was among the last to be flown out of the beleaguered fortress where Brig. Gen. Christian de Castries' outnumbered French Union troops are battling legions of the Communist-lead Vietminh rebels.

He left Dien Bien Phu March 7, just five days before rebel artillery closed down the only air escape route from the encircled plain. Because of French censorship in Indochina, his was the first detailed interview with a combat vetran of the bitter, brutal battle.

"The fighting spirt of the French Union troops is wonderful and the men have a great and warm loyalty for Gen. de Castries," Lemke said.

"They'd go through blazing fires for him and they fight with bravery and with confidence.

"You can't talk about fighting spirit when you talk about the Vietminh.

"They don't fight with loyalty; they always looked to me like they were blindly obedient machines, as though somebody behind them was forcing them forward mercilessly to their death.

"They throw themselves at the defenses wildly. Much of it's at night. And it's bloody and vicious.

"There's lots of hand-to-hand fighting—and I mean close hand-to-hand fighting.

"You can see your opponent's eyes.

"It's seldom if ever that any quarter is granted.

"Casualties are heavy. The Communists don't care about their losses."

In all, Lemke said, there were then about 12,000 French Union soldiers in the besieged garrison when he left. Reliable sources in Indochina believe paratroop reinforcements have swelled it to about 14,000 now, though the French have never announced their force's size. Attacking them are an estimated 45,000 Vietminh.

Lemke said the Vietminh "come in at night, spilling out of the jungle around Dien Bien Phu. They swarm in like locusts and they burst out of their foxholes."

"Those devils are using Russian-made guns—and good ones too — tommyguns, mortars, artillery and antiaircraft guns. Their radar-guided antiaircraft fire is murderous.

"But their ground troops like to fight with their knives and they swing them savagely in hand-to-hand fighting.

"Sometimes it was like a nightmare to meet them in the light of the moon and to listen to their wild cries as they charged.

"My guardian angel stood near me or I'd never be here now."

"They'd go through blazing fires for him and they fight with bravery and with confidence.

"You can't talk about fighting spirit when you talk about the Vietminh.

"They don't fight with loyalty; they always looked to me like they were blindly obedient machines, as though somebody behind them was forcing them forward mercilessly to their death.

"They throw themselves at the defenses wildly. Much of it's at night. And it's bloody and vicious.

"There's lots of hand-to-hand fighting—and I mean close hand-to-hand fighting.

"You can see your opponent's eyes.

"It's seldom if ever that any quarter is granted.

"Casualties are heavy. The Communists don't care about their losses."

In all, Lemke said, there were then about 12,000 French Union soldiers in the besieged garrison when he left. Reliable sources in Indochina believe paratroop reinforcements have swelled it to about 14,000 now, though the French have never announced their force's size. Attacking them are an estimated 45,000 Vietminh.

Lemke said the Vietminh "come in at night, spilling out of the jungle around Dien Bien Phu. They swarm in like locusts and they burst out of their foxholes."

"Those devils are using Russian-made guns—and good ones too — tommyguns, mortars, artillery and antiaircraft guns. Their radar-guided antiaircraft fire is murderous.

"But their ground troops like to fight with their knives and they swing them savagely in hand-to-hand fighting.

"Sometimes it was like a nightmare to meet them in the light of the moon and to listen to their wild cries as they charged.

"My guardian angel stood near me or I'd never be here now."

Kidney Slow-Down May Bring Restless Nights

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, headaches, dizziness and loss of pep and energy. Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exertion or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

DISTRESS IN RUSSIA

SEVERAL PUBLICATIONS and writers of unquestioned integrity are placing emphasis on the conclusion that the Russian Communist empire is floundering in an economic crisis.

These declare that people throughout Russia, as well as in its satellite countries, are suffering from hunger, are ill-housed and ill-clad. This has generated much unrest. Moscow has not attempted to deny any of these reports or rumors. The free world regards these reports with mixed feelings, remembering that "sweet are the uses of adversity" and, also, that a totalitarian nation sometimes is plunged into war to keep the populace in line.

Communism, of course, will fall eventually of its own weakness. Communism—not capitalism, as Marx contended — contains the seeds of its own destruction.

The Russian people, secluded from the rest of the world, are being kept in tow by daily propaganda pointing to the alleged danger of invasion of the ir country by capitalist nations. They have been taught to fear capitalism as a deadly menace. Life under capitalism has been pictured to the Russian people as a nightmare of want and privation. People, especially those who have never known real freedom, will believe such lies when the truth is denied them by all sources of news dissemination.

Regardless of how hungry they are, the mass of the Russian people will not join in a movement to overthrow Communist rule until fear of invasion by the capitalist ogre has been removed.

Russia has built up a tremendous war machine, behind which the Russian people probably feel a sense of security against the monster that would gobble them up. Eventually they will learn the truth. The problem the free world faces is to thwart aggressive plans of the present rulers of the Kremlin until that time arrives.

AN AMERICAN GAME

AN EVENT OCCURRED recently at Monte Carlo which received scant publicity but which should interest countless bridge players throughout the nation. The first all-professional international contract bridge tournament, held at this famous resort, was won by Jan Wohlin of Sweden.

Thus, bridge, or whist as it was originally known, has reached another climax in an interesting career. Contract bridge, first thought of by Harold S. Vanderbilt of New York, is only 27 years old but already has far surpassed any other card game in popularity both at home and abroad.

Actually, contract bridge is the third modification of the old British game of whise which was succeeded by bridge whist which was succeeded by bridge in that order.

When contract bridge was first introduced in Britain it was met with scorn and ridicule and it wasn't until Ely Culbertson took an American team to London and "sold" the game to the reluctant Britons that its popularity began an ascent which has not yet stopped.

Although the recent international contest at Monte Carlo was not won by an American, it is significant that of the eight highest scorers, four were Americans.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

One pauses to step away from the disorders of our days to think in broader terms of the uproar in Congress and press and to a lesser degree among the people over conflicts of methods and ideas. Party lines have so weakened and therefore each individual in Congress, particularly in the Senate, acts alone and without a continuing responsibility to a political party or often even for the country. It is so obviously an era of political transition that actions have become formless.

Who is to blame, who started it first, does not matter as much as that the condition exists. The Eisenhower Administration introduced a new term in American politics, "The Leadership." This term avoids stating that the President normally heads his party as Mr. Eisenhower eschews party politics. It rather sets up a group, consisting perhaps of the President, the Vice President, Senator Knowland, Speaker Martin and Representative Halleck, and such others as are close to the President.

If that is "The Leadership," it contains within itself numerous differences as to the program they are to lead others to. At any rate, it does not include such powerful personalities in Congress as when Senator Taft and Senator Vandenberg led the party in opposition. Resentment grows as men, chosen directly by the people, find themselves ordered to accept authority.

They are rather accustomed to be consulted. Patronage, a prime mover of men, has been so scattered and irregular as to have become a cause for contention rather than a medium for uniformity. The victory of Joseph T. Meek and Harold Velde in the Illinois primaries may be taken as an indication that in Illinois and possibly in the Middle West, "The Leadership" is not leading.

For United States Senator from Illinois, "The Leadership's" candidate ran a poor third; the winner and the runner-up are more closely associated with the positions of Senator McCarthy.

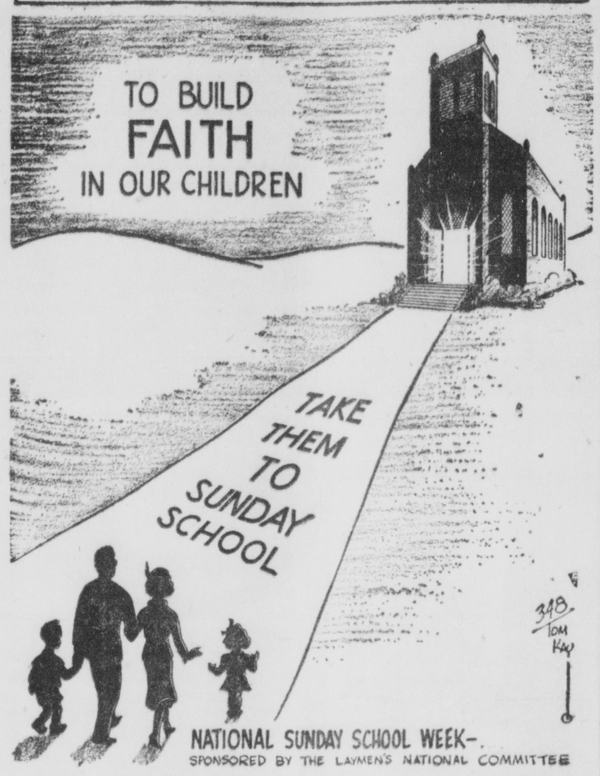

In all the fuss over McCarthy, it is usually not recalled that he has preferred party regularity to individualistic action.

Within "The Leadership" there are those like Nixon and Knowland who have sought to make peace between McCarthy and the White House. On the other hand, McCarthy has, from the beginning of the 83rd Congress, felt that his principal opposition came not from the President but from the White House entourage, particularly Sherman Adams and James Hagerty.

Everyone connected with the present ballooned conflict between Senator McCarthy and Secretary of the Army Stevens believes that terrific pressure was put on Stevens to risk himself and his career in a conflict which, whatever it does to McCarthy, is bound to wreck Stevens.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

JULIA'S bed grew warm, she ached with weariness, but she could not sleep. Her windows faced the highroad, the lane, the gate. No car lights showed there. The rain wept on, sobbing in the gutter at the corner of the house, little strangling gulps that came as regularly as the tickings of her clock. The luminous hands on the dial crept around from 1:30 to 2, then on down relentlessly. At last lights moved up the lane, wavered on the ceiling, caught a flash from the mirror. Julia sat up quickly, twisting into her robe, feeling around on the floor for her slippers. The hall was dark and still but she knew every board of the stairs, the ones that creaked, the narrow ones at the turn.

The car was slipping up to the side door now, under the light, and Julia opened the outside door and stood waiting in the unlighted hall. The car door swung open, but did not close. Then Pierce Albright came up the steps alone. Oblivious of the chill, Julia ran out on the porch.

Pierce said, "Hi, Dooley. Glad it's you. I hope Gale's asleep."

"I think she is. What is it, Pierce?"

She could see the slumped figure of Ravel on the car seat. She seemed to be asleep.

Pierce let out his breath in a long sigh. "Brother, have I had me a time! This time she really tied one on!"

"Is Ravel sick?"

Pierce laughed harshly. "Dooley my pet, your angel sister is stinking, stone-blind drunk! Now what do we do?"

Sick anger made Julia tremble all over. "You did it! Oh, you horrible—"

"Easy!" interposed Pierce. "Take it easy. I had nothing to do with it. She was wild. I stayed with her, that's all. I kept her from making a holy show of herself and I brought her home."

"I'm sorry, Pierce. But why—"

"She acted as if she had a knock or something. I've had the devil of a time with her. We'd better carry her in. She'll be out for hours."

"Pierce, we can't. Gale mustn't see her—and my grandmother is here."

"Listen," Pierce said patiently. "I've been driving around for an hour, waiting for her to come out of it. The car's almost out of gas and all the filling stations out this way are closed."

"We'd wake them up if we tried to get her inside. Wait—I know. Wait here till I get a coat—" She tiptoed back into the hall, found a coat of Gale's hanging on the rack, pulled it on quickly. She turned out the porch light and closed the door, leaving it unlatched. Then she slid into the front seat close to Ravel. "Get in," she ordered, "but don't close the car door nor turn on the motor. Just let it roll back down the lane—no lights."

Pierce leaned out of the car, easing it down the slope toward the gate. He had a tired, dejected air, and the sleeve of his coat next to Julia was sodden wet. So was Ravel's coat wet, and her hair lay damp and sticky against the fevered flesh of her neck. Julia felt her hands; they were bare and icy cold.

"She's awfully wet, Pierce."

"So am I. She tore out of a place we were in and started walking. I chased her for blocks before I finally persuaded her to come back to the car." The car stopped rolling 100 yards from the gate. "Now what?" he asked.

"Start your motor—but no lights. Back out and cut sharply right."

"Where are we going?"

"To that house over there."

"Williamson, eh? Think he'll take her in? How'll you explain that to Gale?"

"I'll think of something. Anyway, it's not hard to explain things to Gale. Grandmother is the complication. She might make a scene and Ray isn't going to be in any condition to go through a scene. Turn on your lights now. Here's the gate, on the left."

"Dooley, you've got to believe me, I tried my best to look after her. But when I met her coming out of the hospital she acted as if she was in a frenzy."

"I know. I saw you. I tried to stop her, too."

"She made me go with her. She was just being brash at first, all full of nasty little cracks and laughing, but there was something sort of ugly under it. As if she was hating something and trying to get away from it—and herself. I bought her a drink at first—thought it might help her get hold of herself, but I saw right away that that was the wrong thing to do."

"You took care of her, Pierce. Forget those things I said. Let me out now, I'll wake John-Mark."

"Want me to blow the horn?"

"No, no! Let's be quiet about it. The servants talk so much."

She knocked loudly at the side door, but it seemed a long time before a light showed above, a window slid up somewhere over her head and John-Mark called out, "Who is it? What do you want?"

She backed down till she could see his shoulders, outlined against the dimness. "It's Dooley, Johnny. Come down, please."

Lights flashing ahead of him, he came down the stairs, in an old bathrobe, with his hair standing out roughly all over his head. He turned on the light over the door and stared at them.

"It's Ravel, Johnny," Julia said hastily. "Pierce brought her home. We can't take her into the house. Grandmother's there—"

"I see." He strode down the steps and stood glaring into the car. "You got her tight; now you don't know what to do about it," he growled at Pierce.

"No, he didn't. He's been trying to keep her from getting herself into a ghastly mess." Julia defended Pierce quickly. "Can we bring her in here, Johnny—till she gets over this?"

"I'll carry her in. Can you stand up?" he asked Pierce.

Pierce swung out of the car. "Listen, Williamson, I'm stone-sober. I've been through a terrible night, taking care of Ravel and I don't appreciate any dumb cracks from you."

"All right, fellow, keep your shirt on. I apologize. Dooley, run upstairs and get a bed ready, in the north room. There are some blankets in the chest in the hall. Can she walk, or will we have to carry her?" He went around the car.

Julia flew up the stairs. The house was disordered, ladders piled in the hall, strips of paper torn off the walls. The north room was a bleak, seldom-used chamber with a high, old-fashioned walnut bed, a huge marble-topped bureau and two red-plush chairs. The air was chilly and Julia found a small electric heater in the bathroom and brought it in, standing shivering before its small, ineffectual glow after she had spread four wool blankets on the big bed. She could hear a murmur of voices below in the hall, then measured steps on the stairs and John-Mark came in, carrying Ravel. Her bright hair sprayed out over his shoulder; her arms and legs hung limply. Pierce followed, along carrying Ravel's shoes, her hat and bag.

She snuggled a little, when John-Mark laid her down in the nest of blankets, but did not open her eyes.

He stood frowning at the crumpled figure on the bed. "We've been fighting this business for quite a while," he said, "Gale and I. She's been getting the stuff and hiding it—but usually one of the men would find it and Thelma was enthusiastic about breaking the bottles and pouring it out."

"Something upset her at the hospital," Julia remarked. "I saw she was furious when she ran out and dragged Pierce with her."

"Dad had telephoned me—said he wanted me to come over and drive Dooley home," Pierce said. "That's how I happened to be at the hospital then. Well, I'd better get along. I'll get a bus to town."

"No buses till 6 o'clock," John-Mark said. "You'd better stay here. Better for Gale not to see you, anyway, till we decide what to tell her."

"Much obliged," Pierce said.

Julia mourned. "How awful to have something like this happen on Christmas!"

"I'll fix Ravel up with black coffee in the morning. I've brought her out of a few of these, but never one like this," John-Mark said.

FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME

1—He was born in Philadelphia Sept. 2, 1839, but settled in California in 1858, and was first a journeyman printer, then rose to editor. Finally he devoted his life to social and economic questions. In 1871 he published a book called Our Land Policy, which he further developed in 1879 under the title, Progress and Poverty, which created much interest and, in 1886, he published Protection or Free Trade. He had no political ambitions but, in 1886, he received an independent nomination as mayor of New York City, but was defeated. He advocated public ownership of land, with retention of the present landlord system, but all land to be taxed upon its rents, with the idea of ultimately bringing about the abolition of all other taxes. Nothing made by man was to be taxed. He died suddenly in 1897 in the midst of a second candidature for mayor of New York. His Principles of Political Economy was published after his death. Who was he?

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON — The tragic lessons learned from revelations of Communist espionage and certain scientists' cloistered concepts of public affairs have been incorporated in the legislation now before Congress for military, civilian and international development of nuclear energy and A-H bombs. It is as foolproof a law as the human mind can devise in an attempt to safeguard America's interests and destiny, and possibly the world's.

It embodies the experiences gained in all the congressional and courtroom exposes of such dangerous individuals as Alger Hiss, Klaus Fuchs, the Rosenbergs and the smaller fry in the Red network here and abroad.

Although there is no comparison between these sinister figures and Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer, now accused of Communist associations and of scientific and humanitarian opposition to the H-bomb, the pending legislation—House Resolution 8862 — eliminates the influence which universally and absent-minded theoreticians might have on turning over atomic secrets to American industry or to the world pool proposed by President Eisenhower in his United Nations address.

Without an almost impossible Russian repentance and reform, it bars the Soviet from participation in any international atomic organization.

FAR-SEEING —Principal credit for incorporation of these safeguards belongs to the hard-headed members of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, which consists of nine members of the House and nine from the Senate. It is composed of the most solid and far-seeing men in both bodies.

As the legislative blueprint reached this group from the Atomic Energy Commission, it was completely unsatisfactory. It vested almost exclusive control over atomic matters, military and civilian, in the President and the AEC.

Despite complete trust in Eisenhower and AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, an original H-bomb advocate, the committee realized that it was writing a basic law for future control of nature's greatest destructive force.

The Cole-Hickenlooper group concluded that it could not afford to leave loopholes for tomorrow's unknown officials, politicians, scientists or possibly Russian sympathizers.

CONTROL—As a result, the rewritten legislation gives Congress an absolute veto over any White House or AEC program for industrializing and internationalizing this awful force. It requires AEC to obtain the Defense Department's viewpoint on domestic or foreign military aspects. It requires periodical AEC reports to Congress, including data on all "disputes" with the Pentagon on major problems.

It provides that neither AEC nor the President may make any "arrangement" for domestic industrial or international use without the approval of Congress. But it carefully and deliberately eliminates the possibility that domestic or foreign defense secrets based on atomic weapons shall be publicized through Congressional hearings or debates.

By using the phrase, "arrangement," the law stipulates that agreements with our Allies need not be treaties. Thus, Congress could handle these matters secretly, although kept fully informed of their import and implications.

RUSSIA OUT—With respect to issuance of a license for atomic use or manufacture to American firms (industries, cities, utilities, railroads, shipping interests), H. R. 8862 requires that action be deferred pending a 90-day review by the Joint Committee and Congress. The deferment period for international "arrangements" is 30 days.

It is difficult to see how Russia can ever comply with requirements for membership in a world atomic pool. For the law provides that the President and Congress must determine (a) "that the cooperating party does not threaten the security of the United States," and (2) "that the proposed agreement will promote and will not constitute an unreasonable risk to the common defense and security of the United States."

It is extremely dubious that Moscow will ever fit into that atomic canvas.

Bennett Cerf's

Try, Stop Me

Frankie Frisch, Fordham graduate who is rated one of the great second basemen in major league history, became a scholarly-looking, bespectacled TV announcer, but in his playing days, was an articulate and active member of the old St. Louis Cardinals' "Gas House Gang" that made umpires' lives particularly miserable.

In one game, Frisch had occasion to question a decision by Umpire Dusty Boggess at the home plate, concluding his oration by labeling Boggess a "blubberhead."

"Did you say 'luggerhead'?" roared the red-faced Boggess.

"No, sir," answered Frisch, his voice suddenly subdued and gentlemanly. "I said 'blubberhead'. I always knew you were blind as a bat, but now I discover you're deaf, too!"

DISTRESS IN RUSSIA

SEVERAL PUBLICATIONS and writers of unquestioned integrity are placing emphasis on the conclusion that the Russian Communist empire is floundering in an economic crisis.

These declare that people throughout Russia, as well as in its satellite countries, are suffering from hunger, are ill-housed and ill-clad. This has generated much unrest. Moscow has not attempted to deny any of these reports or rumors. The free world regards these reports with mixed feelings, remembering that "sweet are the uses of adversity" and, also, that a totalitarian nation sometimes is plunged into war to keep the populace in line.

Communism, of course, will fall eventually of its own weakness. Communism—not capitalism, as Marx contended — contains the seeds of its own destruction.

The Russian people, secluded from the rest of the world, are being kept in tow by daily propaganda pointing to the alleged danger of invasion of the ir country by capitalist nations. They have been taught to fear capitalism as a deadly menace. Life under capitalism has been pictured to the Russian people as a nightmare of want and privation. People, especially those who have never known real freedom, will believe such lies when the truth is denied them by all sources of news dissemination.

Regardless of how hungry they are, the mass of the Russian people will not join in a movement to overthrow Communist rule until fear of invasion by the capitalist ogre has been removed.

Russia has built up a tremendous war machine, behind which the Russian people probably feel a sense of security against the monster that would gobble them up. Eventually they will learn the truth. The problem the free world faces is to thwart aggressive plans of the present rulers of the Kremlin until that time arrives.

AN AMERICAN GAME

AN EVENT OCCURRED recently at Monte Carlo which received scant publicity but which should interest countless bridge players throughout the nation. The first all-professional international contract bridge tournament, held at this famous resort, was won by Jan Wohlin of Sweden.

Thus, bridge, or whist as it was originally known, has reached another climax in an interesting career. Contract bridge, first thought of by Harold S. Vanderbilt of New York, is only 27 years old but already has far surpassed any other card game in popularity both at home and abroad.

Actually, contract bridge is the third modification of the old British game of whise which was succeeded by bridge whist which was succeeded by bridge in that order.

When contract bridge was first introduced in Britain it was met with scorn and ridicule and it wasn't until Ely Culbertson took an American team to London and "sold" the game to the reluctant Britons that its popularity began an ascent which has not yet stopped.

Although the recent international contest at Monte Carlo was not won by an American, it is significant that of the eight highest scorers, four were Americans.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

One pauses to step away from the disorders of our days to think in broader terms of the uproar in Congress and press and to a lesser degree among the people over conflicts of methods and ideas. Party lines have so weakened and therefore each individual in Congress, particularly in the Senate, acts alone and without a continuing responsibility to a political party or often even for the country. It is so obviously an era of political transition that actions have become formless.

Who is to blame, who started it first, does not matter as much as that the condition exists. The Eisenhower Administration introduced a new term in American politics, "The Leadership." This term avoids stating that the President normally heads his party as Mr. Eisenhower eschews party politics. It rather sets up a group, consisting perhaps of the President, the Vice President, Senator Knowland, Speaker Martin and Representative Halleck, and such others as are close to the President.

If that is "The Leadership," it contains within itself numerous differences as to the program they are to lead others to. At any rate, it does not include such powerful personalities in Congress as when Senator Taft and Senator Vandenberg led the party in opposition. Resentment grows as men, chosen directly by the people, find themselves ordered to accept authority.

They are rather accustomed to be consulted. Patronage, a prime mover of men, has been so scattered and irregular as to have become a cause for contention rather than a medium for uniformity. The victory of Joseph T. Meek and Harold Velde in the Illinois primaries may be taken as an indication that in Illinois and possibly in the Middle West, "The Leadership" is not leading.

For United States Senator from Illinois, "The Leadership's" candidate ran a poor third; the winner and the runner-up are more closely associated with the positions of Senator McCarthy.

In all the fuss over McCarthy, it is usually not recalled that he has preferred party regularity to individualistic action.

Within "The Leadership" there are those like Nixon and Knowland who have sought to make peace between McCarthy and the White House. On the other hand, McCarthy has, from the beginning of the 83rd Congress, felt that his principal opposition came not from the President but from the White House entourage, particularly Sherman Adams and James Hagerty.

Everyone connected with the present ballooned conflict between Senator McCarthy and Secretary of the Army Stevens believes that terrific pressure was put on Stevens to risk himself and his career in a conflict which, whatever it does to McCarthy, is bound to wreck Stevens.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

JULIA'S bed grew warm, she ached with weariness, but she could not sleep. Her windows faced the highroad, the lane, the gate. No car lights showed there. The rain wept on, sobbing in the gutter at the corner of the house, little strangling gulps that came as regularly as the tickings of her clock. The luminous hands on the dial crept around from 1:30 to 2, then on down relentlessly. At last lights moved up the lane, wavered on the ceiling, caught a flash from the mirror. Julia sat up quickly, twisting into her robe, feeling around on the floor for her slippers. The hall was dark and still but she knew every board of the stairs, the ones that creaked, the narrow ones at the turn.

The car was slipping up to the side door now, under the light, and Julia opened the outside door and stood waiting in the unlighted hall. The car door swung open, but did not close. Then Pierce Albright came up the steps alone. Oblivious of the chill, Julia ran out on the porch.

Pierce said, "Hi, Dooley. Glad it's you. I hope Gale's asleep."

"I think she is. What is it, Pierce?"

She could see the slumped figure of Ravel on the car seat. She seemed to be asleep.

Pierce let out his breath in a long sigh. "Brother, have I had me a time! This time she really tied one on!"

"Is Ravel sick?"

Pierce laughed harshly. "Dooley my pet, your angel sister is stinking, stone-blind drunk! Now what do we do?"

Sick anger made Julia tremble all over. "You did it! Oh, you horrible—"

"Easy!" interposed Pierce. "Take it easy. I had nothing to do with it. She was wild. I stayed with her, that's all. I kept her from making a holy show of herself and I brought her home."

"I'm sorry, Pierce. But why—"

"She acted as if she had a knock or something. I've had the devil of a time with her. We'd better carry her in. She'll be out for hours."

"Pierce, we can't. Gale mustn't see her—and my grandmother is here."

"Listen," Pierce said patiently. "I've been driving around for an hour, waiting for her to come out of it. The car's almost out of gas and all the filling stations out this way are closed."

"We'd wake them up if we tried to get her inside. Wait—I know. Wait here till I get a coat—" She tiptoed back into the hall, found a coat of Gale's hanging on the rack, pulled it on quickly. She turned out the porch light and closed the door, leaving it unlatched. Then she slid into the front seat close to Ravel. "Get in," she ordered, "but don't close the car door nor turn on the motor. Just let it roll back down the lane—no lights."

Pierce leaned out of the car, easing it down the slope toward the gate. He had a tired, dejected air, and the sleeve of his coat next to Julia was sodden wet. So was Ravel's coat wet, and her hair lay damp and sticky against the fevered flesh of her neck. Julia felt her hands; they were bare and icy cold.

"She's awfully wet, Pierce."

"So am I. She tore out of a place we were in and started walking. I chased her for blocks before I finally persuaded her to come back to the car." The car stopped rolling 100 yards from the gate. "Now what?" he asked.

"Start your motor—but no lights. Back out and cut sharply right."

"Where are we going?"

"To that house over there."

"Williamson, eh? Think he'll take her in? How'll you explain that to Gale?"

"I'll think of something. Anyway, it's not hard to explain things to Gale. Grandmother is the complication. She might make a scene and Rav isn't going to be in any condition to go through a scene. Turn on your lights now. Here's the gate, on the left."

"Dooley, you've got to believe me, I tried my best to look after her. But when I met her coming out of the hospital she acted as if she was in a frenzy."

"I know. I saw you. I tried to stop her, too."

"She made me go with her. She was just being brash at first, all full of nasty little cracks and laughing, but there was something sort of ugly under it. As if she was hating something and trying to get away from it—and herself. I bought her a drink at first—thought it might help her get hold of herself, but I saw right away that that was the wrong thing to do."

"You took care of her, Pierce. Forget those things I said. Let me out now, I'll wake John-Mark."

"Want me to blow the horn?"

"No, no! Let's be quiet about it. The servants talk so much."

She knocked loudly at the side door, but it seemed a long time before a light showed above, a window slid up somewhere over her head and John-Mark called out, "Who is it? What do you want?"

She backed down till she could see his shoulders, outlined against the dimness. "It's Dooley, Johnny. Come down, please."

Lights flashing ahead of him, he came down the stairs, in an old bathrobe, with his hair standing out roughly all over his head. He turned on the light over the door and stared at them.

"It's Ravel, Johnny," Julia said hastily. "Pierce brought her home. We can't take her into the house. Grandmother's there—"

"I see." He strode down the steps and stood glaring into the car. "You got her tight; now you don't know what to do about it," he growled at Pierce.

"No, he didn't. He's been trying to keep her from getting herself into a ghastly mess." Julia defended Pierce quickly. "Can we bring her in here, Johnny—till she gets over this?"

"I'll carry her in. Can you stand up?" he asked Pierce.

Pierce swung out of the car. "Listen, Williamson, I'm stone-sober. I've been through a terrible night, taking care of Ravel and I don't appreciate any dumb cracks from you."

"All right, fellow, keep your shirt on. I apologize. Dooley, run upstairs and get a bed ready, in the north room. There are some blankets in the chest in the hall. Can she walk, or will we have to carry her?" He went around the car.

Julia flew up the stairs. The house was disordered, ladders piled in the hall, strips of paper torn off the walls. The north room was a bleak, seldom-used chamber with a high, old-fashioned walnut bed, a huge marble-topped bureau and two red-plush chairs. The air was chilly and Julia found a small electric heater in the bathroom and brought it in, standing shivering before its small, ineffectual glow after she had spread four wool blankets on the big bed. She could hear a murmur of voices below in the hall, then measured steps on the stairs and John-Mark came in, carrying Ravel. Her bright hair sprayed out over his shoulder; her arms and legs hung limply. Pierce followed, along carrying Ravel's shoes, her hat and bag.

She snuggled a little, when John-Mark laid her down in the nest of blankets, but did not open her eyes.

He stood frowning at the crumpled figure on the bed. "We've been fighting this business for quite a while," he said, "Gale and I. She's been getting the stuff and hiding it—but usually one of the men would find it and Theima was enthusiastic about breaking the bottles and pouring it out."

"Something upset her at the hospital," Julia remarked. "I saw she was furious when she ran out and dragged Pierce with her."

"Dad had telephoned me—said he wanted me to come over and drive Dooley home," Pierce said. "That's how I happened to be at the hospital then. Well, I'd better get along. I'll get a bus to town."

"No buses till 6 o'clock," John-Mark said. "You'd better stay here. Better for Gale not to see you, anyway, till we decide what to tell her."

"Much obliged," Pierce said.

"I'll fix Ravel up with black coffee in the morning. I've brought her out of a few of these, but never one like this," John-Mark said.

1—He was born in Philadelphia Sept. 2, 1839, but settled in California in 1858, and was first a journeyman printer, then rose to editor. Finally he devoted his life to social and economic questions. In 1871 he published a book called Our Land Policy, which he further developed in 1879 under the title, Progress and Poverty, which created much interest and, in 1886, he published Protection or Free Trade. He had no political ambitions but, in 1886, he received an independent nomination as mayor of New York City, but was defeated. He advocated public ownership of land, with retention of the present landlord system, but all land to be taxed upon its rents, with the idea of ultimately bringing about the abolition of all other taxes. Nothing made by man was to be taxed. He died suddenly in 1897 in the midst of a second candidature for mayor of New York. His Principles of Political Economy was published after his death. NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON — The tragic lessons learned from revelations of Communist espionage and certain scientists' cloistered concepts of public affairs have been incorporated in the legislation now before Congress for military, civilian and international development of nuclear energy and A-H bombs. It is as foolproof a law as the human mind can devise in an attempt to safeguard America's interests and destiny, and possibly the world's.

It embodies the experiences gained in all the congressional and courtroom exposes of such dangerous individuals as Alger Hiss, Klaus Fuchs, the Rosenbergs and the smaller fry in the Red network here and abroad.

Although there is no comparison between these sinister figures and Dr. J. R. Oppenheimer, now accused of Communist associations and of scientific and humanitarian opposition to the H-bomb, the pending legislation—House Resolution 8862 — eliminates the influence which universally and absent-minded theoreticians might have on turning over atomic secrets to American industry or to the world pool proposed by President Eisenhower in his United Nations address.

Without an almost impossible Russian repentance and reform, it bars the Soviet from participation in any international atomic organization.

FAR-SEEING—Principal credit for incorporation of these safeguards belongs to the hard-headed members of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, which consists of nine members of the House and nine from the Senate. It is composed of the most solid and far-seeing men in both bodies.

As the legislative blueprint reached this group from the Atomic Energy Commission, it was completely unsatisfactory. It vested almost exclusive control over atomic matters, military and civilian, in the President and the AEC.

Despite complete trust in Eisenhower and AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss, an original H-bomb advocate, the committee realized that it was writing a basic law for future control of nature's greatest destructive force.

The Cole-Hickenlooper group concluded that it could not afford to leave loopholes for tomorrow's unknown officials, politicians, scientists or possibly Russian sympathizers.

CONTROL—As a result, the rewritten legislation gives Congress an absolute veto over any White House or AEC program for industrializing and internationalizing this awful force. It requires AEC to obtain the Defense Department's viewpoint on domestic or foreign military aspects. It requires periodical AEC reports to Congress, including data on all "disputes" with the Pentagon on major problems.

It provides that neither AEC nor the President may make any "arrangement" for domestic industrial or international use without the approval of Congress. But it carefully and deliberately eliminates the possibility that domestic or foreign defense secrets based on atomic weapons shall be publicized through Congressional hearings or debates.

By using the phrase, "arrangement," the law stipulates that agreements with our Allies need not be treaties. Thus, Congress could handle these matters secretly, although kept fully informed of their import and implications.

RUSSIA OUT—With respect to issuance of a license for atomic use or manufacture to American firms (industries, cities, utilities, railroads, shipping interests), H. R. 8862 requires that action be deferred pending a 90-day review by the Joint Committee and Congress. The deferment period for international "arrangements" is 30 days.

It is difficult to see how Russia can ever comply with requirements for membership in a world atomic pool. For the law provides that the President and Congress must determine (a) "that the cooperating party does not threaten the security of the United States," and (2) "that the proposed agreement will promote and will not constitute an unreasonable risk to the common defense and security of the United States."

It is extremely dubious that Moscow will ever fit into that atomic canvas.

Try, Stop Me

Frankie Frisch, Fordham graduate who is rated one of the great second basemen in major league history, became a scholarly-looking, bespectacled TV announcer, but in his playing days, was an articulate and active member of the old St. Louis Cardinals' "Gas House Gang" that made umpires' lives particularly miserable.

In one game, Frisch had occasion to question a decision by Umpire Dusty Boggess at the home plate, concluding his oration by labeling Boggess a "blubberhead."

"Did you say 'luggerhead'?" roared the red-faced Boggess.

"No, sir," answered Frisch, his voice suddenly subdued and gentlemanly. "I said 'blubberhead'. I always knew you were blind as a bat, but now I discover you're deaf, too!"

The Fordham Flash heard the rest of the game via radio in the clubhouse dressing room.

Circleville Club Is Host To Regional Garden Clubs

90 Garden Clubs Are Represented

Circleville Garden club members were hostesses to a regional meeting of District 9 of Ohio Association of Garden clubs in First Methodist church.

Representatives from a membership of 2,209 in more than ninety clubs in Pickaway, Fayette, Ross, Fairfield, Franklin and Jackson counties were present for the sessions.

Mrs. George Welker, president of the hostess group, gave a welcoming address and a reading of "The Legend of the Dogwood" by Charles Nye. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Walter Hughes of Clarksburg, regional director.

Mrs. Rex Moreland of Centerburg was principal speaker of the sessions, emphasizing in her address the importance of state projects to the local community and to the growth of the Ohio Association. She stated that the state membership now is 18,300.

Mrs. V. R. Frederick, state chairman of Horticulture, showed proper methods of propagation of many cuttings and flowers. Materials used in her demonstration were presented as door prizes. Mrs. Howard Riehler of Gahanna, a state officer, also was present for the meeting.

During a business session, announcement was made of a State convention to be held Sept. 9 and 10 in Ohio Union Building of Ohio State University, Columbus.

A flower show is to be held May 27 at Oak Hill, Jackson County; Scioto Garden club will hold a flower show May 14 in Ashville Evangelical church, and a Spring flower show of Mt. Pleasant and Kingston Garden clubs will be held May 11 in Kingston Methodist church.

Mrs. Donald Watt was general chairman of arrangements. She was assisted by Mrs. Guy Heffner as co-chairman.

Mrs. Orion King and Mrs. Arnold Moats were in charge of registrations. Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Anna Ritt and Mrs. Guy Heffner formed a decorating committee, using a color theme of yellow and white.

Mrs. Roy Wood and Mrs. Blanche Woltz, in charge of favors, presented the guests with boutonnieres. Favors of plant food were given by Harpster and Yost Hardware and the tradition of the Circle was presented the group through the courtesy of the Third National Bank.

Household Hints

Those leftover boiled potatoes will taste delicious if you dice them and put them into a skillet with some bacon fat. Add some diced onion and fry until golden brown, shaking the pan occasionally. Add salt and freshly-ground pepper, if necessary. Serve with a sprinkling of minced parsley or finely chopped green pepper.

Ever try fixing up crunchy cereal to serve with tomato juice? Just melt a couple of tablespoons of butter or margarine in a heavy skillet and add one and one-half cups bite-size shredded rice biscuits. Stir over low heat for three to five minutes; sprinkle with salt and paprika. Serve warm or cold. Delicious!

Sweetheart Dinner Is Held By Methodist Church Group

Highlight of social activities for First Methodist men's group was held Wednesday evening in the church basement when the men entertained their ladies with a Sweetheart dinner.

Ray Friend, president of the group, presided at the affair. Robert Moyer, superintendent of Jackson Township school, served as program chairman introducing the speaker for the occasion, The Rev. Harold R. Albert, pastor of First English Lutheran church of Columbus.

The Rev. Mr. Albert, who also is president of downtown Columbus Kiwanis club, used as his theme, "Tensions in the Home". He emphasized the fact that true strength of the home is the ability of husband and wife to pray for one another. He stated that an individual who prays for another thinks more carefully before he criticizes.

The speaker listed a deep faith as an essential need in these times when community pressures pull people away from their homes during the day and evenings. He stated that a sense of humor is one of the vital elements for happiness, since well-adjusted people need the ability to laugh at themselves and their troubles. His speech provided a good example of his own sense of humor and the reaction of laughter on people in general.

The dinner was prepared and served by the Methodist Youth Fellowship under the direction of Mrs. Roliff Wolford, advisor for the group. Mrs. Harold Clifton, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. Walter Heine and Mrs. William Purdin assisted in preparation of the food.

Dick Plum served as ticket chairman and decorations were arranged by Mr. and Mrs. William Cook. Each of the ladies was presented a blooming plant as a favor.

Circleville Club Is Host To Regional Garden Clubs

90 Garden Clubs Are Represented

Circleville Garden club members were hostesses to a regional meeting of District 9 of Ohio Association of Garden clubs in First Methodist church.

Representatives from a membership of 2,209 in more than ninety clubs in Pickaway, Fayette, Ross, Fairfield, Franklin and Jackson counties were present for the sessions.

Mrs. George Welker, president of the hostess group, gave a welcoming address and a reading of "The Legend of the Dogwood" by Charles Nye. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Walter Hughes of Clarksburg, regional director.

Mrs. Rex Moreland of Centerburg was principal speaker of the sessions, emphasizing in her address the importance of state projects to the local community and to the growth of the Ohio Association. She stated that the state membership now is 18,300.

Mrs. V. R. Frederick, state chairman of Horticulture, showed proper methods of propagation of many cuttings and flowers. Materials used in her demonstration were presented as door prizes. Mrs. Howard Riehler of Gahanna, a state officer, also was present for the meeting.

During a business session, announcement was made of a State convention to be held Sept. 9 and 10 in Ohio Union Building of Ohio State University, Columbus.

A flower show is to be held May 27 at Oak Hill, Jackson County; Solaqua Garden club will hold a flower show May 14 in Ashville Evangelical church, and a Spring flower show of Mt. Pleasant and Kingston Garden clubs will be held May 11 in Kingston Methodist church.

Mrs. Donald Watt was general chairman of arrangements. She was assisted by Mrs. Guy Heffner as co-chairman.

Mrs. Orion King and Mrs. Arnold Moats were in charge of registrations. Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Anna Ritt and Mrs. Guy Heffner formed a decorating committee, using a color theme of yellow and white.

Mrs. Roy Wood and Mrs. Blanche Woltz, in charge of favors, presented the guests with boutonnieres. Favors of plant food were given by Harpster and Yost Hardware and the tradition of the Circle was presented the group through the courtesy of the Third National Bank.

Household Hints

Those leftover boiled potatoes will taste delicious if you dice them and put them into a skillet with some bacon fat. Add some diced onion and fry until golden brown, shaking the pan occasionally. Add salt and freshly-ground pepper, if necessary. Serve with a sprinkling of minced parsley or finely chopped green pepper.

Ever try fixing up crunchy cereal to serve with tomato juice? Just melt a couple of tablespoons of butter or margarine in a heavy skillet and add one and one-half cups bite-size shredded rice biscuits. Stir over low heat for three to five minutes; sprinkle with salt and paprika. Serve warm or cold. Delicious!

Trinity Lutheran Missionary Group Conducts Meeting

Trinity Lutheran Missionary Society met in the parish house with Mrs. H. M. Crites in charge of the session.

Group singing opened the meeting and devotions were conducted by Mrs. Denny Pickens, Chaplain. Bible study was presented by Mrs. Richard Fellmeth and topic for the month, "Living with a Purpose" was given by Mrs. Mildred Weller.

Delegates were appointed to attend a Spring convention of the Columbus Southern Group of Women's Missionary Federation of American Lutheran churches to be held April 29 in Emmanuel Lutheran church, Columbus.

Mrs. C. O. Leist was presented a life membership in the Women's Missionary Federation by Mrs. J. C. Carpenter, life membership department chairman.

Mrs. John Smith, program chairman presented Lois Wittich, Lois Walters and Barbara Allen in a vocal selection. The meeting closed with prayer by The Rev. G. L. Troutman.

Refreshments were served by an April committee including Mrs. J. C. Goeller, Mrs. Harry Trump, Mrs. Ferd Martin, Mrs. Jacob Bowers, Mrs. Ed Sensenbrenner and Mrs. John Howard.

Sweetheart Dinner Is Held By Methodist Church Group

Highlight of social activities for First Methodist men's group was held Wednesday evening in the church basement when the men entertained their ladies with a Sweetheart dinner.

Ray Friend, president of the group, presided at the affair. Robert Moyer, superintendent of Jackson Township school, served as program chairman introducing the speaker for the occasion, The Rev. Harold R. Albert, pastor of First English Lutheran church of Columbus.

The Rev. Mr. Albert, who also is president of downtown Columbus Kiwanis club, used as his theme, "Tensions in the Home". He emphasized the fact that true strength of the home is the ability of husband and wife to pray for one another. He stated that an individual who prays for another thinks more carefully before he criticizes.

The speaker listed a deep faith as an essential need in these times when community pressures pull people away from their homes during the day and evenings. He stated that a sense of humor is one of the vital elements for happiness, since well-adjusted people need the ability to laugh at themselves and their troubles. His speech provided a good example of his own sense of humor and the reaction of laughter on people in general.

The dinner was prepared and served by the Methodist Youth Fellowship under the direction of Mrs. Roliff Wolford, advisor for the group. Mrs. Harold Clifton, Mrs. Howard Smith, Mrs. Walter Heine and Mrs. William Purdin assisted in preparation of the food.

Dick Plum served as ticket chairman and decorations were arranged by Mr. and Mrs. William Cook. Each of the ladies was presented a blooming plant as a favor.

Northwest Key Word Found To Be Growth

Slight Tip Downward In Economy Labeled As Only Temporary

By SAM DAWSON

SEATTLE (AP)—Growth is still the key word in the Pacific Northwest. So, it dismisses as "just temporary" certain economic factors—production, trade, jobs, prices — that today slant a little toward the downside.

Expansion plans continue. The region is still building. It's a little scornful of recession nerves back East.

By the Pacific Northwest people here mean Washington, Oregon, Idaho and the part of Montana west of the continental divide—a region tied together by the Columbia River and its tributaries, but split in climate and economy by the Cascade Mountains paralleling the coast. To the west of them there's lots of rain. To the east there's little.

"The Pacific Northwest can expect a slight preponderance of minus signs among the 1954 business indicators," say officials of the Seattle-First National Bank, which has branches throughout Washington. "But no sizable cutbacks are in prospect. The area is still growing."

Throughout this region the chief concern today is what outsiders will do to it.

Housing starts around the nation call the tune for the Northwest's big money crop—lumber.

National defense planning sets the output rate for its aircraft and allied industries—now a big stabilizing factor in some parts of the Northwest.

Government farm policies and world market conditions control to greater degree here than in most parts of the nation, bankers say, the prosperity of its wheat, pea and fruit growers.

Reclamation policy, as much as the weather, determines the production outlook for its water power and aluminum industries, and for its steadily expanding irrigated farming sections.

The ruckus in Indochina is closer to the Northwest and to its economy than it is to some other parts of the land.

Northwest bankers say the business slip was worrisome early this year. Unemployment reached a peak in February. Both Washington and Oregon report that it's been dropping now for several weeks, although still above the year ago mark.

AMONG THE FIRST of the estimated 500,000 persons who will visit Washington during the annual Cherry Blossom festival, four Japanese girls stroll along the tidal basin in front of the Jefferson memorial. From left they are Mrs. Takeshi Arita, Bunroky Yoshino, Vasuhiro Matsuoka and Hiroto Tanaka. This year the blossoms salute the first U. S.-Jap treaty, in 1854. (International)

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is an ABC on the rumpus over the Federal Housing Administration, which, with government money, guaranteed loans for such things as building apartment houses and making home improvements.

The Eisenhower adminstration and two congressional committees are making intensive investigations into reported abuses and frauds under these two FHA programs.

Rental housing—

This program, begun in 1942, ended in 1950. To increase the number of dwelling units during and after the war, Congress passed a law which said:

FHA would insure loans, up to 90 per cent, for building rental housing. In the eight years involved 7,000 projects, with 465,000 dwelling units, were built. Example:

The Jones company wanted to put up an apartment house. It had to submit its plans to FHA, whose appraisers estimated the cost. Say, in one case, FHA estimated the cost at one million dollars.

Since the FHA would insure a loan made to the Jones outfit up to 90 per cent—in this case $900,000—the bank let the company have the one-million-dollar loan.

Maybe the FHA estimate was too low and the actual cost turned out to be $1,300,000. That was the Jones company's tough luck. Say the estimate was too high and the apartment house cost only $700,000.

The Jones company might pocket the $300,000 difference. It could do this by various means, such as declaring itself a $300,000 dividend and legally going out of business, or by fixing rents high enough so tenants would pay off the inflated loan.

Any thing illegal about that? Apparently not. The company found a way to cut costs or the FHA appraiser had made a mistake.

But if the company and the FHA appraiser deliberately schemed to set the estimate, and therefore the loan, much higher than the actual cost, that would be conspiracy. The appraiser and the company might be prosecuted.

If the Jones company reported the $300,000 on its income tax return as a flat profit, the tax might be as much as 75 per cent. But if it reported the $300,000 as a "windfall" under the capital gains provision of the law, the tax would be only 26 per cent.

Which should it be considered: a profit with a high tax or a capital gain with a low tax? The Internal Revenue Service argues it should be a profit. But this question will have to be decided by a federal court.

If the court rules against the government, says Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews, the Treasury stands to lose 26 million dollars in cases involving 1,149 FHA-insured apartment projects. But he says his agents have found no tax fraud in these cases.

But isn't there something in the law under which FHA, after an apartment building is completed, goes back and checks to see whether the actual cost was less than the estimate and compels the builder to give back the difference? No.

The builder's only obligation apparently is to pay back the full loan as it comes due, if he's still in business. He can do that on the rents from the tenants in the building.

Since this program ended in 1950, any frauds connected with it happened under the Democratic administration. But any frauds connected with FHA's home improvement program which is still in existence may have occurred under either Democrats or Republicans.

Home improvements—

Under this FHA guarantees loans up to $2,500 for improvements on individual homes.

Suppose a builder charges Smith $1,000 to put a back porch on his house. Smith had to get a bank loan, guaranteed by FHA, to pay him. No FHA appraiser or inspector is called in before or afterwards to estimate the true cost of the porch or the cost of the finished product.

Suppose, further, Smith finds the porch defective or that the actual cost was only $500 and that the builder therefore gypped him out of $500. Any crime here? Apparently no federal crime. He might be able to sue the builder in a state court.

COLUMBUS (AP)—Sheriff's deputies yesterday released Carl Demmy, 44, of Columbus following a lie detector test. He had been questioned in the death of his wife, Sally, 38, whose body was found Sunday in Big Walnut Creek.

Sokolsky's These Days

Too much was omitted from the Army's 29 charges, which is known to members of the Committee, and too much has been loosely and incorrectly stated not to hurt Stevens when the preponderance of evidence is to be weighed. But what, from the Republican standpoint, is politically all wrong is that the Democrats on the Committee act on their own and too often prevail, so that a campaign issue is being made out of something that is hardly of any great importance compared, let us say, with the Russian advantage in the use of nuclear weapons and the danger of direct involvement in the Indochina War.

There seems to be a competition for front page excitement between the McCarthy-Stevens situation and the Oppenheimer case. In both, the battle is being fought in the press which has itself criticized Senator McCarthy for doing the same thing—and rightly so. The result of leaks, of Senators voting for fair play and breaking their own rules, of a defendant before a secret panel making public the data concerning his hearing, all on hiw own, have engendered a confusion in the minds of the people. How can anybody know what is true when only one side is presented and none of that is obviously wholly true?

From all sides, one hears that the people are not only tired of these wrangles, but are growing weary of the wranglers. However, to the politicians, this is a Congressional election year and they need a hullabaloo to make it interesting for the voters so that they will vote. It looks as though many will stay at home—or play golf on Election Day, and politicians fear a boycotted election except where the outcome cannot be in doubt.

Abortionist Guilty

CANTON (AP)—A jury of five men and seven women convicted a 65-year-old Salinville man yesterday of performing an abortion on a 17-year-old girl. Lawyers for the defendant, George Sharp, asked for a new trial.

Ho Chi Minh And His Tieup With Kremlin Is Studied

Editor's Note—This is the fourth of a series of articles on Indochina by William L. Ryan, AP specialist in Communist affairs. He interviewed scores of persons in Indochina, flew over the battle areas, and then went to Singapore to report his findings free of censorship. Ryan's concluding article in the series will appear tomorrow.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

SINGAPORE, April 22 (AP) — Ho Chi Minh has no real following in Viet Nam, said a Vietnamese leader. Ho is losing ground politically in Viet Nam said a French officer. He would win three quarters of the vote in Viet Nam if there was an election tomorrow, said an American observer.

All three are more right than wrong. Ho's power was forced on the people in the areas he controls. Many people in the Vietminh areas have been disillusioned by what he has done to them with his power. In an election, Communist terror in Red areas would frighten voters away from the polls. In other regions a combination of nationalism, hatred of the French and the appeal of Ho's propaganda probably would be decisive.

The Viet Nam side has only the appearances of unity, at best. There is even a feeling of rivalry and resentment between the south and the north. The south is a surplus area, the north a deficit area. Tonkin and Annam were protectorates when Cochin China in the south was a colony, getting political experience with its own assembly. The southerners, who pay most of the taxes, are unwilling to accept the appearance of domination by the harder-working northern people.

That is only part of the story. Viet Nam has a number of political parties, but all seem made up only of leaders without members to speak of. One of the firmest unifying influences probably is the Catholic Church, but it has only two million members.

Religious sects operate their own armed forces. Only about a week ago, some of these para-military organizations announced willingness to place themselves under the national army. It probably took some persuasion and there are no firm prospects of success for the venture in view of the weakness of the Viet Nam government.

The oldest and the strongest of the armed sects is the Cao Dai, which actually is an attempt to embrace all religions. Basically, there was no real religion in the past in Viet Nam except ancestor worship. The Cao Dai has saints from many religions and from outside the religious field. Victor Hugo, for example, is a Cao Dai saint. The sect also has a pope in imitation of Rome, and cardinals — including women.

The Cao Dai has had physical control over a large area of south Viet Nam. Its armed force numbers about 20,000 effectives, regulars and local militia, with authority over about two million persons, like a state within a state. The Cao Dai, a member of the so-called anti-Communist nationalist bloc, has opposed the government in the past and has resisted having its forces taken into the national army. Armed by the French, the Cao Daists are fairly well equipped.

Another sect, the Bunh Xuyen, has about 6,000 troops, also armed by the French and led by Gen. Le Van Bien, who is known as a gambling czar. This organization has control of the area from Saigon to the sea at Cap St. Jacques. It has gambling privileges to finance itself and it is also rumored it exacts tribute from Chinese merchants in Cholon, a city of 875,000. Cholon is 90 per cent Chinese, who govern themselves on ancient congregational patterns and are not considered a political factor.

The Hoa Hao sect has about 6,000 troops, organized militarily on similar lines to the Cao Dai but far less influential.

Over-all there seems no single leader who can rally the whole country, no single ideal, no single rallying point at all. Possibly the only unanimity might be hatred of the Chinese, who dominated the country for a thousand years and whose troops pillaged after the Japanese left following Worl War II. But the ordinary peasants remain unaware that victory for Ho would mean victory for the Chinese too.

Against all this, Ho has a tight organization of disciplined Communists, organized down to the village commissar level. This is being tightened even more with Chinese help in the form of "political educators" who are instructing Vietminh Communists how to teach the villagers their political manners. The Communist Laodong (Workers') party parallels the government organization directly. Overall control is totally in the hands of the Tongbo, central executive committee of the Communist party.

Ho divided the country into military districts with Communists in control of each district. The army is organized on the approved Communist line with a political commissar wielding unquestioned power over military officers.

The best guess is that Moscow wanted Ho and the Vietminh to be victorious without palpable intervention from Russia or China. The fact that the Chinese have now upped to an estimated 6,000 their advisers and technicians and that Russian supplies and trucks are pouring into northern Indochina does not alter this plan, since only appearances interest Moscow.

One good bet concerning Ho—this brilliant, fragile mystery man of the Orient—is that there is no case on record of his having disobeyed a Moscow order. It seems unlikely he would do so now. So it will probably be Moscow calling the turn for Indochina at the Geneva conference. Ho, son of a ruling class mandarin but a revolutionary since boyhood, long has been Moscow's most dependable political brain in Southeast Asia. Whether he is now a military brain too is open to grave doubt. More likely the Russians and Chinese have furnished new military brains from the outside.

Ho at 19 shipped aboard a French vessel as a cabin boy on travels which eventually took him to Paris, via the United States, Britain and Germany. A passionate student of Marx and communism, he was qually passionate about languages, eventually speaking, besides his native Annamite and dialects, French, Mandarin Chinese, English, Russian and German.

Ho started the Indochinese national independence movement after World War I. Moscow caught him up in 1923 and took him there for two years study. Then he went to Thailand via China and from Bangkok directed the Indochinese underground. He returned to Moscow in 1927 for Comintern world strategy meetings and was assigned to organize the Indochinese party and take over the movement in Malaya and Thailand.

In a shift of line by Moscow, Ho turned to collaboration with the French. After the fall of France and the Japanese advance during World War II, Ho took refuge in Yunnan province in China. There he formed the Viet Nam Doc Lap Dong Minh Hoi (League for the Independence of Viet Nam, called Vietminh for short). It was made up of refugees from Indochina.

The Japanese were driven out of Indochina and Chinese Nationalists occupied the country to the 16th Parallel. Ho proclaimed the independent state of Viet Nam. He entrenched himself because the Chinese were stubborn about getting out of the north, although Allied landings had re-established French authority in the south. When the Chinese finally pulled out, the French felt they had to compromise with Ho. They recognized his state as independent within the French Union. Bao Dai abdicated as emperor and joined Ho's cabinet as an adviser. But Ho and the French differed about the meaning of independence and a clash came in December 1946, beginning the jungle hit-and-run war which has never stopped.

Ho has surrounded himself with able, fiercely dedicated and ruthless men. Among them are his power twins, Party Secretary General Truong Chin and Vice President Tham Van Dong. Among the most interesting men in the Ho retinue is Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, defense minister and commander in chief of the army.

Giap hates the French. Now 42 years old, a native of Annam, he was a scholar and a history professor as well as a revolutionary, a career he began as a youth. A veteran of French prisons, his hatred deepened when his wife, jailed as a subversive, died in her cell in 1941.

These men handle the party and keep discipline. When necessary they purge and get rid of suspects by shooting them. Gradually the Laodong party squeezed out all other nationalist elements from a "national united front movement." The Communists took that movement over completely.

This is the kind of an organization Viet Nam faces if there is a cease-fire and the French fall back. It would be an uneven contest.

Tomorrow: What are the answers?

$17 Tax Refund Finally Sighted

OMAHA (AP)—James P. Davies is near his goal—a $17 tax refund after a 29-day tussle with county red tape.

It all started when Mrs. Davies paid the taxes on the family car while Mr. Davies was out of town.

Later Davies paid the same taxes when Mrs. Davies was out of town. When they compared notes, Davies set out to get back the extra $17 they had paid.

For hours he toured county offices, moving from the treasurer to the assessor to the County Board. Now the latter has approved a refund.

Ho Chi Minh And His Tieup With Kremlin Is Studied

Editor's Note—This is the fourth of a series of articles on Indochina by William L. Ryan, AP specialist in Communist affairs. He interviewed scores of persons in Indochina, flew over the battle areas, and then went to Singapore to report his findings free of censorship. Ryan's concluding article in the series will appear tomorrow.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

SINGAPORE, April 22 (AP) — Ho Chi Minh has no real following in Viet Nam, said a Vietnamese leader. Ho is losing ground politically in Viet Nam said a French officer. He would win three quarters of the vote in Viet Nam if there was an election tomorrow, said an American observer.

All three are more right than wrong. Ho's power was forced on the people in the areas he controls. Many people in the Vietminh areas have been disillusioned by what he has done to them with his power. In an election, Communist terror in Red areas would frighten voters away from the polls. In other regions a combination of nationalism, hatred of the French and the appeal of Ho's propaganda probably would be decisive.

The Viet Nam side has only the appearances of unity, at best. There is even a feeling of rivalry and resentment between the south and the north. The south is a surplus area, the north a deficit area. Tonkin and Annam were protectorates when Cochin China in the south was a colony, getting political experience with its own assembly. The southerners, who pay most of the taxes, are unwilling to accept the appearance of domination by the harder-working northern people.

That is only part of the story. Viet Nam has a number of political parties, but all seem made up only of leaders without members to speak of. One of the firmest unifying influences probably is the Catholic Church, but it has only two million members.

Religious sects operate their own armed forces. Only about a week ago, some of these para-military organizations announced willingness to place themselves under the national army. It probably took some persuasion and there are no firm prospects of success for the venture in view of the weakness of the Viet Nam government.

The oldest and the strongest of the armed sects is the Cao Dai, which actually is an attempt to embrace all religions. Basically, there was no real religion in the past in Viet Nam except ancestor worship. The Cao Dai has saints from many religions and from outside the religious field. Victor Hugo, for example, is a Cao Dai saint. The sect also has a pope in imitation of Rome, and cardinals — including women.

The Cao Dai has had physical control over a large area of south Viet Nam. Its armed force numbers about 20,000 effectives, regulars and local militia, with authority over about two million persons, like a state within a state. The Cao Dai, a member of the so-called anti-Communist nationalist bloc, has opposed the government in the past and has resisted having its forces taken into the national army. Armed by the French, the Cao Daists are fairly well equipped.

Another sect, the Bunh Xuyen, has about 6,000 troops, also armed by the French and led by Gen. Le Van Bien, who is known as a gambling czar. This organization has control of the area from Saigon to the sea at Cap St. Jacques. It has gambling privileges to finance itself and it is also rumored it exacts tribute from Chinese merchants in Cholon, a city of 875,000. Cholon is 90 per cent Chinese, who govern themselves on ancient congregational patterns and are not considered a political factor.

The Hoa Hao sect has about 6,000 troops, organized militarily on similar lines to the Cao Dai but far less influential.

Over-all there seems no single leader who can rally the whole country, no single ideal, no single rallying point at all. Possibly the only unanimity might be hatred of the Chinese, who dominated the country for a thousand years and whose troops pillaged after the Japanese left following Worl War II. But the ordinary peasants remain unaware that victory for Ho would mean victory for the Chinese too.

Against all this, Ho has a tight organization of disciplined Communists, organized down to the village commissar level. This is being tightened even more with Chinese help in the form of "political educators" who are instructing Vietminh Communists how to teach the villagers their political manners. The Communist Laodong (Workers') party parallels the government organization directly. Overall control is totally in the hands of the Tongbo, central executive committee of the Communist party.

Ho divided the country into military districts with Communists in control of each district. The army is organized on the approved Communist line with a political commissar wielding unquestioned power over military officers.

The best guess is that Moscow wanted Ho and the Vietminh to be victorious without palpable intervention from Russia or China. The fact that the Chinese have now upped to an estimated 6,000 their advisers and technicians and that Russian supplies and trucks are pouring into northern Indochina does not alter this plan, since only appearances interest Moscow.

One good bet concerning Ho—this brilliant, fragile mystery man of the Orient—is that there is no case on record of his having disobeyed a Moscow order. It seems unlikely he would do so now. So it will probably be Moscow calling the turn for Indochina at the Geneva conference. Ho, son of a ruling class mandarin but a revolutionary since boyhood, long has been Moscow's most dependable political brain in Southeast Asia. Whether he is now a military brain too is open to grave doubt. More likely the Russians and Chinese have furnished new military brains from the outside.

Ho at 19 shipped aboard a French vessel as a cabin boy on travels which eventually took him to Paris, via the United States, Britain and Germany. A passionate student of Marx and communism, he was qually passionate about languages, eventually speaking, besides his native Annamite and dialects, French, Mandarin Chinese, English, Russian and German.

Ho started the Indochinese national independence movement after World War I. Moscow caught him up in 1923 and took him there for two years study. Then he went to Thailand via China and from Bangkok directed the Indochinese underground. He returned to Moscow in 1927 for Comintern world strategy meetings and was assigned to organize the Indochinese party and take over the movement in Malaya and Thailand.

In a shift of line by Moscow, Ho turned to collaboration with the French. After the fall of France and the Japanese advance during World War II, Ho took refuge in Yunnan province in China. There he formed the Viet Nam Doc Lap Dong Minh Hoi (League for the Independence of Viet Nam, called Vietminh for short). It was made up of refugees from Indochina.

The Japanese were driven out of Indochina and Chinese Nationalists occupied the country to the 16th Parallel. Ho proclaimed the independent state of Viet Nam. He entrenched himself because the Chinese were stubborn about getting out of the north, although Allied landings had re-established French authority in the south. When the Chinese finally pulled out, the French felt they had to compromise with Ho. They recognized his state as independent within the French Union. Bao Dai abdicated as emperor and joined Ho's cabinet as an adviser. But Ho and the French differed about the meaning of independence and a clash came in December 1946, beginning the jungle hit-and-run war which has never stopped.

Ho has surrounded himself with able, fiercely dedicated and ruthless men. Among them are his power twins, Party Secretary General Truong Chin and Vice President Tham Van Dong. Among the most interesting men in the Ho retinue is Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, defense minister and commander in chief of the army.

Giap hates the French. Now 42 years old, a native of Annam, he was a scholar and a history professor as well as a revolutionary, a career he began as a youth. A veteran of French prisons, his hatred deepened when his wife, jailed as a subversive, died in her cell in 1941.

These men handle the party and keep discipline. When necessary they purge and get rid of suspects by shooting them. Gradually the Laodong party squeezed out all other nationalist elements from a "national united front movement." The Communists took that movement over completely.

This is the kind of an organization Viet Nam faces if there is a cease-fire and the French fall back. It would be an uneven contest.

Tomorrow: What are the answers?

$17 Tax Refund Finally Sighted

OMAHA (AP)—James P. Davies is near his goal—a $17 tax refund after a 29-day tussle with county red tape.

It all started when Mrs. Davies paid the taxes on the family car while Mr. Davies was out of town.

Later Davies paid the same taxes when Mrs. Davies was out of town. When they compared notes, Davies set out to get back the extra $17 they had paid.

For hours he toured county offices, moving from the treasurer to the assessor to the County Board. Now the latter has approved a refund.

FORMER MARINE CORPS Maj. Donald E. Keyhoe tells Betty White and her TV network audience that flying saucers do exist and that our government has set up a Mars committee to investigate life on that planet. He also said the Air Force is withhholding information which would prove saucers do exist. Sighting of foreign missiles are on the increase, he declared. (International Soundphoto)

Manly Hairy Chest Means Little When Covered Up By Pink Shirt

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Most men will do anything for women.

They'll climb the highest mole hill. Swim the deepest puddle to hold an umbrella over 'em in the rain. Lift them tenderly in and out of revolving doors.

Most men will even marry women, bring 'em a paycheck all their life, rescue them from a strangling octopus at the beach or a tight girdle at home. Even listen to 'em.

More and more men must have been listening to their wives lately, or how else can you explain why more and more men are busting out in pink shirts?

Gaze at the masculine landscape around you. "Creeping pink-shirtism" is turning thousands of hairy male chests a rosebud nursery color.

Stockbrokers are wearing pink shirts. So are pawnbrokers. So are wrestlers and oother professional actors, bankers, factory hands and bus drivers.

The white collar class has practically vanished. It's the pink collar class now. The average office looks like an apple orchard in spring bloom.

Now, mind you, I'm not denouncing pink shirts. I asked a friend of mine, who has worn them for years, what life in a pink shirt was like, and he said:

"A pink shirt gives you a happy feeling. Strange women come up to talk to you at cocktail parties, and not all of them are nearsighted—just strange.

"Street beggars, for some reason, avoid a man in a pink shirt, so you save money. Small children and prowling dogs are sometimes frightened away by my pink shirt, but that's all right with me. I like cats, and my two cats seem to prefer me in a pink shirt, particularly after twilight.

"I'll admit there was one disadvantage to my pink shirt at the start. Whenever the boss looked around the office for someone he could unload some of his own work on, there I sat—as conspicious as the rear end of an elephant in a telephone booth. But then the boss bought a pink shirt himself, and now everybody in the joint is wearing one.

"If I wanted to catch his eye now, I'd have to grow a beard."

Well, I'm reconciled to wearing a pink shirt, too, and I will come the next blinding fog.

The point I want to make, men, is this: It is time for American men to put their foot down and say firmly: "Women, this far and no farther. Hold! Enough!"

While there is nothing wrong with pink shirts in themselves, they are another step in woman's steady march to power over the male.

A husband today rarely tells his wife what she should wear. His influence is purely negative. He usually says only, "Well, dear that is something that is nice, but it isn't for you."

But since a wife now buys most of her husband's clothing or is the voice of decision, her influence is overwhelmingly positive. She says, "This is what I bought for you, Buster. Put it on. Mrs. Jones bought one just like it for her husband, and he looks real cute in it."

That is why I feel that today the average man more and more is dressing, not by his own standards, but by one of two standards:

1. By the way his wife thinks she would like to look, if she were a man.

2. By the way some neighbor's wife dresses her husband.

Congressmen Set For Annual Game

The game had been scheduled for last night but was rained out.

Guns And Knives Tossed In Furnace

ATLANTA (AP)—Police Chief Herbert Jenkins reported yesterday that a barrel and a half of guns and knives were dropped into a blast furnace at a steel mill here. Fifteen slot machines also were tossed in.

"We think we have found a means of destroying them," Jenkins commented.

Truck Permits Sold

CLEVELAND (AP)—Motor Express Inc. of Huntington, W. Va., made the high bid of $172,000 yesterday for the bankrupt Greig Freight Line's two Interstate Commerce Commission permits to operate routes in New York, Ohio and West Virginia.

They'll climb the highest mole hill. Swim the deepest puddle to hold an umbrella over 'em in the rain. Lift them tenderly in and out of revolving doors.

Most men will even marry women, bring 'em a paycheck all their life, rescue them from a strangling octopus at the beach or a tight girdle at home. Even listen to 'em.

More and more men must have been listening to their wives lately, or how else can you explain why more and more men are busting out in pink shirts?

Gaze at the masculine landscape around you. "Creeping pink-shirtism" is turning thousands of hairy male chests a rosebud nursery color.

Stockbrokers are wearing pink shirts. So are pawnbrokers. So are wrestlers and oother professional actors, bankers, factory hands and bus drivers.

The white collar class has practically vanished. It's the pink collar class now. The average office looks like an apple orchard in spring bloom.

Now, mind you, I'm not denouncing pink shirts. I asked a friend of mine, who has worn them for years, what life in a pink shirt was like, and he said:

"A pink shirt gives you a happy feeling. Strange women come up to talk to you at cocktail parties, and not all of them are nearsighted—just strange.

"Street beggars, for some reason, avoid a man in a pink shirt, so you save money. Small children and prowling dogs are sometimes frightened away by my pink shirt, but that's all right with me. I like cats, and my two cats seem to prefer me in a pink shirt, particularly after twilight.

"I'll admit there was one disadvantage to my pink shirt at the start. Whenever the boss looked around the office for someone he could unload some of his own work on, there I sat—as conspicious as the rear end of an elephant in a telephone booth. But then the boss bought a pink shirt himself, and now everybody in the joint is wearing one.

"If I wanted to catch his eye now, I'd have to grow a beard."

Well, I'm reconciled to wearing a pink shirt, too, and I will come the next blinding fog.

The point I want to make, men, is this: It is time for American men to put their foot down and say firmly: "Women, this far and no farther. Hold! Enough!"

While there is nothing wrong with pink shirts in themselves, they are another step in woman's steady march to power over the male.

A husband today rarely tells his wife what she should wear. His influence is purely negative. He usually says only, "Well, dear that is something that is nice, but it isn't for you."

But since a wife now buys most of her husband's clothing or is the voice of decision, her influence is overwhelmingly positive. She says, "This is what I bought for you, Buster. Put it on. Mrs. Jones bought one just like it for her husband, and he looks real cute in it."

That is why I feel that today the average man more and more is dressing, not by his own standards, but by one of two standards:

1. By the way his wife thinks she would like to look, if she were a man.

2. By the way some neighbor's wife dresses her husband.

Congressmen Set For Annual Game

The game had been scheduled for last night but was rained out.

Guns And Knives Tossed In Furnace

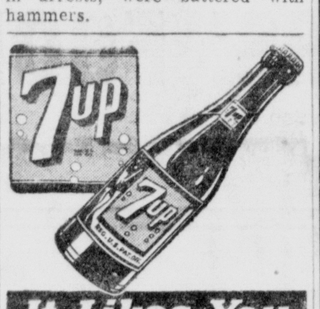

ATLANTA (AP)—Police Chief Herbert Jenkins reported yesterday that a barrel and a half of guns and knives were dropped into a blast furnace at a steel mill here. Fifteen slot machines also were tossed in.

"We think we have found a means of destroying them," Jenkins commented.

Truck Permits Sold

CLEVELAND (AP)—Motor Express Inc. of Huntington, W. Va., made the high bid of $172,000 yesterday for the bankrupt Greig Freight Line's two Interstate Commerce Commission permits to operate routes in New York, Ohio and West Virginia.

Answers Differ On Bender's Qualifications

Solon Seeking Senate Seat Expected To Make Strong Race

Editor's Note: Following is the first of two articles on the pair of candidates seeking the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator. Today: Bender; tomorrow; Saxbe.

CLEVELAND (AP)—What kind of senator will Ohioans get if they nominate George Harrison Bender next month and elect him in November?

The question will be easy for thousands of Buckeye voters. They've known Bender for years, especially in Cleveland where he's been on the Republican side of the ballot every fall since 1920.

But the answers will differ widely.

"Hardest working congressman we've got in Washington—has the best run office of any of them," one man said.

"Not dignified enough for a senator," said another into whose living room Bender came by TV during the Chicago convention two years ago—a cowbell-clanging Bender hoarsely singing to the tune of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" the words: "Taft for me, and Taft for you; Taft will win in '52."

"Agressive, and a man the party can count on," a Bender supporter tells you.

"A political hack," says an anti-Benderite, borrowing the phrase from Bender's primary election opponent, William Saxbe of Mechanicsburg.

But, friend and foe alike know his bid for the Senate seat from which death took Robert A. Taft last July will be a strong bid.

Bitterest moment of his 42 years in politics, Bender admits, was when he lost to Democrat Stephen M. Young in the 1948 Truman surprise. In 1950, driving himself through 21-hour campaign days, Bender recaptured from Young the congressman-at-large seat he had held for a decade.

Bender will be 58 Sept. 29. Gray is creeping into his mass of wavy brown hair, and—a lover of good eating—he has trouble keeping the load on his six-foot frame under 200.

He has had his own insurance firm since 1934, and it has prospered.

The 14-acre estate Bender bought during his first term in Congress (for $30,000, he says) is one of the beautiful Chagrin River Valley's show places.

Insurance is his business, but politics is Bender's career. He started as a knickers-and-cap-clad high school boy in 1912. Theodore Roosevelt's Bull Moose campaign came to town that year, and George was converted into local boy orator and petition passer. At 19 Bender was one of the Progressive party national convention's most callow delegates.

When he was 24, with strong church support and soon-repudiated Anti-Saloon League backing, Bender in 1920 won his first and sweetest political victory: Election to the state Senate.

For nearly 20 years Bender has been Cuyahoga County Republican chairman. He has published the National Republican, an unofficial GOP monthly journal, for a like span. And since 1938, except for the biennium when he said "the Dewey people got us overconfident," he has been a U. S. representative.

In years of jockeying for political power in Ohio's largest city, Bender has had some rough rides. He's been at odds with many Republican big names. And many little names, too, for he once had patronage offices going in Cleveland, Washington and Columbus. Fifteen years ago he told reporters he had 44,000 job applications on file.

Comparing himself with Saxbe and former Mayor Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland, incumbent appointee and Democrat senatorial nominee, Bender thinks he'd be the best man to complete the last two years of Taft's term because—"Of the three candidates, I'm the most experienced and the best qualified to appreciate what the legislative job requires."

Bender said that during his 14 years in Congress the two things of which he is most proud are: "My work for and support of the Taft-Hartley act, and my perfect voting record for President Eisenhower's program." He has put forth only a few bills of general interest, among them legislation to repeal the poll tax and anti-lynching measures.

He declared himself for the United Nations, but said he is not putting much hope in it for the near future because "it's in the formative stage. You have to believe in the U.N as you believe in singing 'Onward Christian Soldiers'."

Delores Elsea Queen Here For Jaycee Sulky Racing

Legion's Top Majorette Will Present Trophy, Program May Launch Revival Of Local Sport

By DAVE BROWN
Herald Sports Writer

Delores Elsea of Circleville, named last year as the Ohio American Legion's leading drum majorette, was chosen Wednesday as Queen of the 1954 Jaycee Harness Matinee.

The announcement was made by Dick Butler, publicity chairman for the event that will serve as a magnet Sunday for sulky fans from all over this section of the state. The program, widely regarded as curtain-raiser for a revival of harness-racing here, will be staged at the Pickaway County Fairgrounds starting at 1:30.

Miss Elsea, majorette for Circleville's American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, will present the Hilliards Raceway Trophy, to be won by the horse with the best heat time Sunday. She will also award the other prizes—blankets, halters and lead straps—to winners of the individual races.

Butler also released the list of horses entered for the affair, sponsored by the Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce. Funds raised will be used toward a new grandstand at the fairgrounds.

MANY FANS will recognize such owners and drivers as George Van Camp, Eddie Cobb, Clarence Helvering, McKinley Kirk and a host of others. Kirk is a director of the United States Trotting Association.

The meet opens the harness racing season in this area and is sanctioned by the U.S.T.A. A professional mobile starting gate is but one of the many attractions to be featured Sunday afternoon. The Circleville Drum and Bugle Corps will provide music.

There will be three heats with two races to each heat. The horse with the best time of each heat will be declared the winner. There will also be a special fourth heat.

Heat number one will be run by two year-old pacers. They will open the meet and come back in the fourth race.

Heat number two is for classified pacers. The first trial will be the second race on the program. They return for the fifth race.

Heat number three for classified trotters will be run as races three and six in the afternoon program.

THERE WILL BE a special fourth heat for classified trotters to round out the affair.

IN THE following paragraphs are the entrants in order of their post positions. Following the horses' names are the owners and then the drivers, in that sequence.

First Heat—Two Year-Old Pacers

(1) Marty Pilot, John Martindale Sr. and Jr. of Williamsport, M. Thornton. (2) Winning Girl, George A. Fissell of Circleville; F. Short. (3) Market Value, E. Cobb of Washington C. H.; B. Norris. (4) Cheetah Goose, George W. Van Camp of Circleville; Van Camp. (5) Watch Bob, Arthur and Harley Mace of Circleville; J. Mace. (6) Wing Guy, Wayne Martin of Circleville; M. Thornton. (7) Pilot Chief, Raymond Swank of Circleville; P. Martin. (8) Gene The First, E. Cobb; Cobb.

Second Heat—Classified Pacers

(1) Dooney's Cleer Ralph, Clarence E. Ham of Reynoldsburg; E. Ham. (2) Jerrita Win, Forest and Harry Short of Circleville; F. Short. (3) Jerry H., Clarence Helvering of Circleville; Helvering. (4) Air Pilot, Porter Martin of Circleville; Martin. (5) Kelly McWin, Arthur and Harley Mace; J. Mace. (6) Belwin Bunter, John Martindill Sr. and Jr.; L. Huber Jr. (7) Perry's Boy, Dale Chief, M. Thornton of Circleville; M. Thornton.

Third Heat—Classified Trotters

(1) Guided Missle, Bill Green of Orient; M. Carpenter. (2) Rosey W., Joe Wolfe of Circleville; Wolfe. (3) Merchant Hanover, Joe Norris of Washington C. H.; Norris. (4) Royal Crusader, E. Cobb; Cobb. (5) Virgilina Van, George W. Van Camp; Van Camp; (6) Gay Two, E. F. Hawkins of Forestville, N. Y.; C. Flore. (7) Moon Song, D. Moon; Moon.

Fourth Heat—Classified Trotters

(1) Minnie W., J. Wolfe; Wolfe. (2) Game Lady, M. Kirk of New Holland; Kirk. (3) Arlene Rose Craft, D. Moon; Moon. (4) Frank Reynolds, E. Cobb; Cobb. (5) Smart Tip, Forest and Harry Short; F. Short. (6) King Castle, Porter Martin; Martin. (7) Star Lassy, George Seimers of Circleville; Seimers. (8) Anneta Song, Clarence Helvering; Helvering.

DELORES ELSEA, WHO WILL reign as Queen of the Jaycee Harness Matinee Sunday, holds the reins of Pilot Chief, one of the entrants. Delores will present the Hilliards Raceway Trophy to the driver whose horse records the best time of the afternoon. The pacer is owned by Raymond Swank. Lucky horse! No wonder he's paying attention.!

Maybe Homer Was Good For Bullet Bob

Orioles' Turley Near No Hitter When Tribe Batsman Explodes

By The Associated Press

Bullet Bob Turley may still be nursing a home run headache today, but he probably will wind up glad he didn't pitch that no-hitter.

Turley toils for the Baltimore Orioles and last night be came within two outs of holding the Cleveland Indians hitless. He wound up getting beaten 2-1 when Al Rosen singled and Larry Doby, twice a strikeout victim, lined a high pitch 360 feet into the right field stands of Baltimore's Municipal Stadium.

"It was over his head," Turley said. "He never should have swung."

Turley is so fresh out of the Army that he wasn't around the last time a member of his team pitched a no-hitter. That was in May last season when the Orioles were still the St. Louis Browns. Bobo Holloman was the author Nobody would go broke giving prizes for answers to the question "Where's Holloman now?".

Bobo never pitched another complete game for the Browns and he was lost in the minors by the time Turley shed his khaki last August.

A blond Greek-god type who stands 6-2 and weighs 215, Turley throws harder than any pitcher who has hit the big time since Bobby Feller moved from his Iowa farm to the Indians. He was the hottest property on the winter baseball market and the new owners of the Orioles turned down cash offers of $150,000 and upwards for his services.

Like Feller he is a strikeout artist. In 60 innings last season he struck out 61 men, despite a 2-6 record. He fanned nine on Baltimore's opening day when he beat Chicago 3-1 and last night he nailed 14 Indians on strikes.

The new Orioles, like the old Browns, don't seem able to get him many runs. Seven of his eight games last year were decided by a single run, just like last night when eight Baltimore hits off Bob Lemon produced a first-inning run and no more.

Bob Porterfield of the Washington Senators, whose luck is usually all bad, was more fortunate than Turley last night. He pitched a three-hitter against the Philadelphia Athletics and his mates supported him with a 13-hit attack that produced a 13-1 victory.

New York whipped Boston 5-1 in the only other American League game. Brooklyn defeated Philadelphia 6-3, Pittsburgh edged the New York Giants 5-4, St. Louis beat Cincinnati 4-2, and Milwaukee thumped Chicago 7-3 in the National League.

The Yankees used their patented weapon, the home run, to ruin young Leo Kiely's return from the Army to the Red Sox. Yogi Berra, Gil McDougald and Mickey Mantle pounded Kiely's left-handed slants into the Yankee Stadium seats while the Sox were being mystified by Eddie Lopat.

The Phils threw their game away in Brooklyn in the first inning. Three throwing errors by the infield sandwiched between five walks and a single gave the Dodgers three runs. The league champions added three more in the next two innings and Billy Loes lasted long enough to silence the Phils' threats although he needed help from Jim Hughes in the ninth.

Whitey Lockman had a bad night in Pittsburgh. The Giants' first baseman hit a home run in the fifth inning only to have it disallowed because a base runner, Monte Irvin, had called time. Then in the eighth inning he muffed a pickoff throw from Don Liddle, and Toby Atwell scampered home from third base with the winning run.

Frank Thomas drove in three of the five Pirate runs with a two-on homer in the first inning.

Gerry Staley of the Cards won his first game and a new suit of clothes in Cincinnati. Manager Eddie Stanky, moaning over his pitiful pitching, in desperation offered the new suit to the first hurler to stay the distance. Staley immediately responded with a nine-inning eight-hitter.

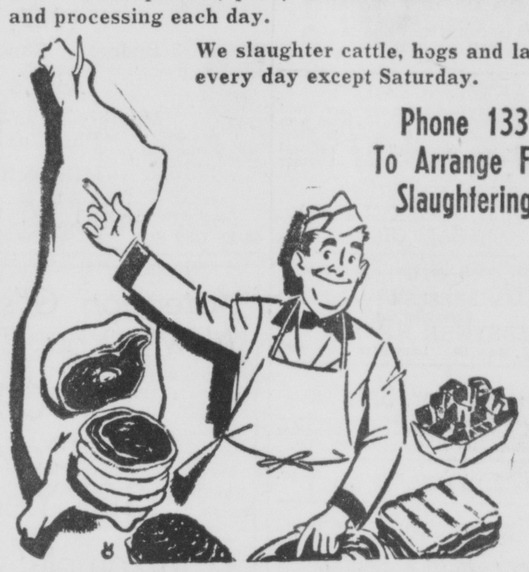

Stanky wasn't around for much of it. He was chased in the third inning by Umpire Bill Jackowski for making rude gestures after being warned to stay within the lines of the coaching box.

Warren Spahn, Milwaukee's biggest winner last year, won his second straight with the help of a three - run homer by Eddie Mathews and a two-run blast by Joe Adcock. Adcock may not be on hand much longer. He received orders yesterday to report for an Army physical May 28.

We will accept beef, pork, veal and lamb for curing and processing each day.

We slaughter cattle, hogs and lamb every day except Saturday.

This stunning "hardtop" model is the Buick SPECIAL Riviera—V8-powered, and priced just a few dollars above similar models of the "low-price three"!

TAKE THE WHEEL—just for the joy of it

UNLESS you've tried it yourself, you're going to find it hard to believe.

But when you press the pedal of a 1954 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow,* joy reigns—and so do you.

You feel the joyous thrill of commanding instant response, the solid "take hold," the firm authority of your acceleration.

You feel a joyous exhilaration at the utter smoothness of the forward carry—a completely infinite smoothness that is there every inch of the way.

And you feel a deep and abiding joy at the simplicity of it all, the ease with which you drive, the blessed restfulness of travel with a truly automatic transmission working its wonders.

As we said, you'll find this hard to believe—until you try it yourself.

Until you try TT Dynaflow with the stepped-up V8 horsepowers of the 1954 Buicks. Until you try it with the new buoyancy and the new handling sureness of the improved Million Dollar Ride. Until you try it with the new visibility, the new luxury, the new "look of tomorrow" styling that are part and parcel of every 1954 Buick.

So, we want you to be our guest at the wheel of a 1954 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow this week.

During April, 1,500,000 people will guest-drive the 1954 Buicks, and join the Thrill Of The Month Club by doing so. We cordially invite you to join them, for a real thrill. Call us today.

Stengel To Try For Win Again

CHICAGO (AP)—Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees will try for his first managerial triumph in five straight All-Star games in baseball's 21st mid-summer classic in Cleveland July 13.

Selection of Walter Alston, successor to Charley Dressen of the Brooklyn Dodgers, to direct the National League All-Stars was announced during spring training.

Against the combined talent of the National League, Stengel has drawn a complete All-Star blank the last four years.

'Kid Baseball' Lessons Given In Movie Style

About 150 Players, Parents Gather To See Films

Fundamentals of America's Grand Old Game were brought to district youngsters in movie style Wednesday night to signify that "kid baseball" had returned for another season in Circleville and the rest of Pickaway County.

Dick Boyd, city recreation director, presided at a showing of two baseball films in Circleville High School auditorium. Approximately 150 boys and their parents were on hand to watch the how-to-play talkies.

Included in the audience were more than 15 fathers of the young baseballers, some of whom have already held their first workouts for the 1954 campaign. A group of the "dads" lingered after the movie session to talk over various plans in connection with the fast-approaching season. High interest was the keynote of the gathering and Boyd said he was satisfied with the turnout, pointing to the size of the audience as compared with current plans for only three leagues.

Many other boys who will be seen in action on and after the gala Opening Day ceremonies at Ted Lewis Park were not able to attend the movie meeting.

BOYD SAID hopes of launching a tentatively-named "County League", open to teams from anywhere in this district, have taken a sharp upturn with the assurance that Ashville "is sure" to enter a club in that circuit. Boyd said he feels certain also of an entry from Walnut Township, and that two teams in the loop—for boys 15, 16 and 17—will also be available in Circleville.

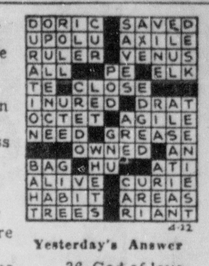

All the games will be played at Ted Lewis Park. Any other district communities interested in the oldest of the "kid baseball" leagues should notify Boyd or The Herald's sports department at the earliest opportunity.

Spokesmen for baseball players and fans at New Holland were on hand at the movie session to assure Boyd they also plan to have their community represented, in one league or another, before the season opens. They suggested it may prove easier to draw county-wide representation to the Little League than for the oldest circuit, pointing to the fact that players in the 15-to-17 bracket may not be able to come to Circleville frequently for games due to Summertime jobs.
